Executive Summary / (TL;DR) (Summary)

This is a summary; I won't include proofs. If you want pictures and proofs, go see the full story on the timeline. This document contains more than 300 proof.

The summary might not cover all the points I didn't notice, so if you want to double-check everything, it's best to check the timeline.

I'm YSH, known as Eve among my current friends. I met Ozel in 2021 through Funky Friday. We quickly became friends because we both enjoyed game development, and after talking for hours, we started working on projects together.

In March 2022, I began developing a Bomb Tag game. Ozel asked to join, and we eventually formed a team of 4. During development, I noticed an inappropriate model in the game, but I ignored it and continued working. A few hours later, my Roblox account was permanently terminated, causing me to lose every project I had spent years building. Ozel blamed another teammate and became extremely emotional, but I chose to calm the situation and move on.

Not long after I lost my account, Ozel asked me to help with another one of his projects, despite knowing what had just happened. A month later, he also sent me an explicit image as a joke, which made me uncomfortable because I never liked that kind of humor. In May 2022, I finally joined Ozel's JoJo project after he repeatedly said he needed scripting help. I spent nearly two years working on it. As time passed, developers left, contributors became unavailable, and most of the workload fell onto me while Ozel gradually became less active. I repeatedly explained that we needed more developers and funding, but he refused for a min, leaving me under increasing pressure until I eventually burned out. but at then he agreed that I can't do anything by my self

To help fund the JoJo project, we started a simpler game based on a trending concept and It's was FPE. I invited my friend again in the projects and handle the modelling and I handled the programming while Ozel focused on building. Although we initially agreed on a 50/50 revenue split, I ended up doing most of the work. When I suggested adjusting the percentages so other developers could be rewarded fairly, Ozel refused. He also claimed he would be unavailable because of personal issues and an upcoming surgery, but during that period he continued making videos, playing Roblox, and collaborating with others youtubers while contributing very little to the project. Eventually, I removed him from the developer role and reduced his percentage to make the distribution fair for the rest of the team while keeping him as the owner. Later, I felt guilty, apologized, and restored his developer role. He admitted that it was not my fault because he had not been contributing much I tried to tell him that 38% will help us while he will be unavailable to help us but he kept refusing. I reassured him that I still appreciated the work he had done, and we moved on.

This was only the beginning of a much larger pattern. Over time, I realized Ozel repeatedly relied on others to carry his projects, resisted fair credit and revenue distribution, and often manipulated situations to benefit himself. That realization is what ultimately led me to create this document. After I restored Ozel's developer role, I told him he could earn back his original 50% share by helping us hire outside developers. He agreed. I later hired a modeler named Ed to make assets for our game. Although he finished the work quickly, Ozel repeatedly delayed paying him, even after saying he would. After the second commission, my friend and I paid Ed ourselves because we did not want him to wait any longer. The experience left Ed frustrated with Ozel, so I stopped hiring him to avoid more conflict.

A few months later, Ed joined one of Ozel's games where I had admin permissions. I trusted him with building tools, but instead he grieved the map to get back at Ozel. I never expected him to do that. Since I had invited him, I took full responsibility and tried to fix the damage without blaming him. But someone reported me to Ozel, saying that I was the one who caused the problem because Ed had left the game early and I was the only one holding the Btools. After letting things cool down, I apologized to Ozel and even offered to repay the Robux he had spent on the game. He never responded. Instead, he removed me from every project we had worked on together, including the JoJo game that I had spent two years helping develop. I later asked one of his friends to speak with him. His friend told me that Ozel no longer wanted to be friends because he believed I had chosen Ed over him and had only used him. That accusation genuinely shocked me. I had spent years supporting his projects, helping him whenever he asked, and standing by him during difficult times. Being called manipulative after all of that felt completely unfair.

I eventually messaged Ozel myself, asking why he saw me that way after everything we had been through. We talked, but it was obvious he had already decided to end the friendship, so I accepted it and tried to move on. A few days later, I decided to respect Ozel's wishes and remove him from my friends list. Before doing so, I sent him a goodbye message, explaining that I understood his decision. I never truly intended to cut him off forever. I knew he was going through personal issues, so I wanted to give him space. I only removed him as a friend and left our shared Discord groups so we still had a way to communicate if needed.

A few months later, Ozel began tagging me in random groups and sending GIFs and messages without caring who could see them. He spoke negatively about me, then left the groups. I wanted the conflict to end peacefully, so I reached out to him. We agreed to try to move on and stay on good terms, although our conversations were much colder than before. Not long after, one of my friends showed me screenshots of Ozel speaking negatively about me in DMs. I confronted him again, hoping we could finally resolve everything, but the conversation only became worse.

He started making personal mocking, my English and dismissed the fact that I didn't know that I had struggled with learning because of my ADHD (Hard learning). Although I had spoken to him before about being bullied more than once because of my English, he told me in my face that if he really had been using me, I would never realise it. That was the point where I had had enough. The topics he mocked were personal issues, especially because he already knew I had been bullied for my English

In June 2026 I left Ozel for two months, but I couldn't get over it. I tried to hang myself in my room This was the first attempts It wasn't because of ozel butl, it was because of more than one thing. but I was scared. I regretted helping someone like that. but I started to understand many things that suddenly made sense to me like why he seemed so unaffected when I lost my Roblox account, why he kept pressuring me to join projects I had repeatedly declined, and why the friendship always seemed to benefit him more than anyone else. That was when I realized our friendship had never been as equal as I believed.

Because of my mood swings, I wanted to explain to Ed that he made the model over-inflated, but I ended up cursing it. I just wanted to be honest, but I didn't realize I was being too blunt. I tried to apologize to Ed more than once, both publicly and privately, but he started talking about me badly and insulting my work. At first, I was upset, but I accepted the idea that I had done something similar, so he was getting his revenge. However, he went off the air, unlike me; I was only on the developers' server. And that's definitely no excuse. You went beyond what I said and said things I shouldn't have said.

At the time, I did not know I had ADHD. I thought my difficulty noticing those patterns was simply because I was stupid, so I carried that guilt for a long time. In early 2026, I even wrote Ozel an apology. but I deleted it shortly after realizing I what I'm doing. I'm certain he saw the message, but he chose to ignore it.

I was angry about several things, and unintentionally, I insulted Model Aid. I didn't mean to insult anything; I just wanted to describe the model's appearance. I apologize and take full responsibility for this mistake, and on the contrary, I tried to apologize to him more than once.

I also tried apologizing to Ed multiple times, hoping we could fix our friendship, but eventually I felt like I had lost everyone.. Throughout 2026, I was finally diagnosed with ADHD after living with it for years. I only discovered this much later; I thought I was just stupid and that I didn't understand things quickly. but that diagnosis does not excuse my mistakes; it helped me understand why I had struggled to recognize manipulation and why I had blamed myself for so long. After some time, in February 2026, Ed contacted me again and sent me a friend request. He told me I had been the best friend he had ever had. I thanked him, but I also told him I could not forget the way he had spoken about me behind my back. He simply thanked me for the good memories.

As I continued recovering, I decided to write down my entire experience. I trusted Ed enough to tell him about it, believing he understood how hurt I was. Instead, he secretly recorded our conversations and shared them with people. They later Ed used those recordings and send it to ozel. When I confronted Ed, he told me that he lied about several things, but by then the damage had already been done. after Ozel made his doc about me, I finally spoke to Ozel after years about the document.

He admitted that everyone had made mistakes, but by then it felt far too late. He also implied there was more information that could still be added, which only reinforced my belief that people had been sharing stories about me behind my back for a long time. That conversation confirmed that the trust I once had in both of them was gone.

At first, he'd try to make me think, "Wow, Ozel understands me! Wow, Ozel understands what happened!" But then they way he was talking shifted, starting with phrases like, "The pictures and videos I see will affect your reputation. I hope no one sees them," or "I still have pictures I haven't documented out of respect for their privacy."

Then he'd change to something calmer, like, "I've started reading the Quran," or "I don't want to cause any trouble for your reputation." It was all so chaotic. I felt like he knew exactly what he was doing. He knew when to threaten and when to speak nicely, which made me think Ozel cared about my well-being, even though his words were laced with threats and sarcasm. But I'm definitely not the same anymore. I noticed the threats and told him that they were threats and that his tone was a red flag.

Ozel BITE 4/12/2026 2:33 PM

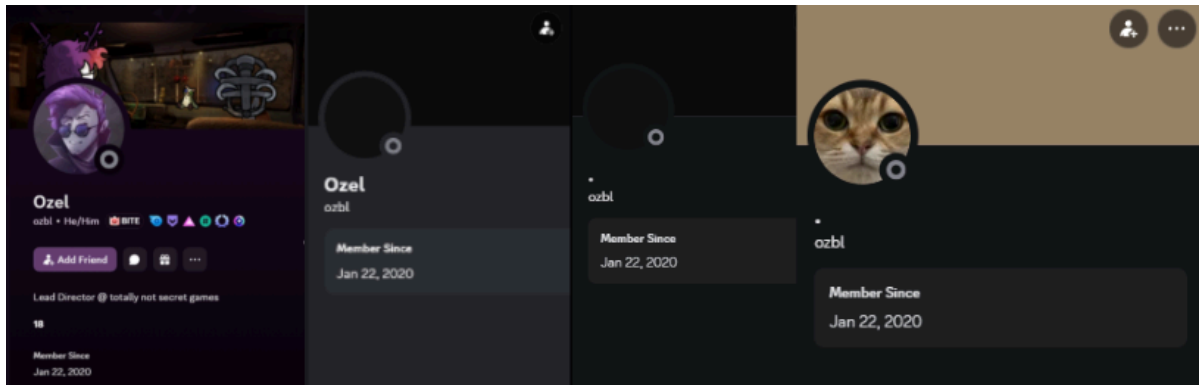

- 1 - the word you keep mentioning about, "if i was really using you, you wouldn't even realise it" was a word i said to make you realize I'd never do such a thing specifically we known each other for years, why would you think i'd do such a thing
- 2 - I clearly remember we talked about this and decided that you can keep the % I was going to get in ur fpe game that I was barely contributing to, yet here we are talking the same things again
- 3 - some people can understand it wrong when someone tries to be harsh about their replies, I need you to understand that I'm trying to understand ur issue here
- 4 - deleting the messages, adding my texts in ur document, and adding the edited texts I changed to make the texts I sent you before more understandable yet still counting them as "evidence" is a next level disrespect specially if you're trying to accuse me of stuff here while you're the one started to make this document in the first place
- 5 - I respect nawaf's privacy otherwise there would be more mentioning about him, but he's not involved in this as from what I've seen so far, you never bothered to dm me even tho we already solved our issue and yet you're still here telling me the same stuff without giving me the answer I need. You're asking me to take the document down but I can only do that when everything is cleared out, otherwise there's not much I can do
- 6 - your rep is not damaged, but the clips and screenshots I'm looking at from the other people sent me in discord would really hurt your rep, I just hope that nobody sees this. I already reached out to you yet the responses you made were barely something or it was literally nothing, atleast from what I've seen so far
- 7 - yeah I didn't understood what it actually meant after I grew up, which I already apologized but you're still bragging about it. and you don't see me making those disgusting jokes anymore, there's years of gap between back then and current
- 8 - you never bothered to talk to me even tho I would be interested to fix the stuff between you and I again for the last time
- 9 - it still doesn't matter, you're a part support

You're Viewing Older Messages Jump To Present g on with the people that needed your support

4/15/2026 2:39 PM
Cuz currently after new screenshots arrived there's a big possible chance that this can cause big problems for you

But anyway, to ozel if you don't have enough proof, if you don't feel you have a response to the issue, communication would have been beneficial in ending the matter. But no, he still chose to lie to his followers to get a glimpse of the victim, presenting only 3 cropped photos as proofs \(My Responed to Document Ozel link\)

After this incident, Ozel completely changed his account to another account with a different name (ozbls), thus avoiding the problem instead of taking responsibility.

Disclaimer

Attention-deficit hyperactivity disorder (ADHD) (Very Important)

I have been diagnosed with ADHD, and English is not my native language. Because of this, some parts of this document may contain repeated points, unclear wording, or organizational issues.

This makes learning English very difficult for me, even though it's easy, it's complicated, especially when it comes to speaking.

I am not including this as an excuse or to seek sympathy. I am only providing context for the way the document is written. If certain statements appear more than once or some sections are not structured as clearly as others, it is a result of my writing style and limitations when communicating in English.

If I exaggerated in any part by mistake, I apologize. I'm using translation due to my weak English.

This document is also the 11th version I have worked on. While I have made efforts to revise and organize it, it may still contain mistakes. Please keep this in mind when reviewing the document.

Outsiders (Very Important)

This document may mention several people or groups who were not originally part of the situation, such as Papercut and others. They are only included because Ozel chose to involve them in the matter. From my perspective, he inserted himself into situations involving them and collected information and screenshots about me through those interactions.

As a result, I found it necessary to mention these individuals and groups in order to explain the full context of events and clarify how certain parts of the situation developed. Their inclusion is intended only to provide context and explain what happened.

Hiding Names (Important)

There may be some people who affected how I saw Ozel, including people I met who were previously his friends. What they shared played a part in how I understood the situation and how I started to see things.

I am not going to use their full names in this document. I will just refer to them in a different way, like using initials or something similar, so I don't expose their identity.

I am doing this because I respect their privacy, and I don't think it's necessary to put their names out just to explain what happened. Unlike Ozel, who mentioned the name of someone who helped us even though there was no real reason to include them, I don't see a need to expose people who are not directly involved.

Not asking for sympathy (Very Important)

Ultimately, I attempted suicide 8 times, but all attempts failed and worsened my mental health. I tried to confide in Ed about my problem. I told him, "I've tried to commit suicide many times since I was fired from Papercut. I haven't felt happy or experienced any dopamine since being let go of Papercut." But I discovered that Ed was recording everything I said.

The document may contain suicidal content. I'm not trying to play the victim or elicit sympathy, but what happened to me was devastating. Anyone in my situation might consider suicide as their last resort, especially after losing a project they've worked on for years. I was fired twice from projects I'd worked on for over a year: one from Ozel (a full year) and another from Papercut (two years).

During that time, my GPA plummeted, and I was on the verge of being expelled, which worsened my mental health. In January 2026, I saw a psychiatrist for treatment. My condition improved, but... In March 2026, my condition worsened after I came to terms with what had happened, such as Ozel exploiting me and hearing about other people's problems with him. This prompted me to write a document detailing my issues with Ozel.

I absolutely do not recommend suicide. And please bear in mind that this document is not intended to make the reader feel sympathy.

Statement for Innocent Developers (Very Important)

Please do not associate Bite by Night with Ozel, or Ozel with Byte by Night. I do not want anyone involved to receive harassment because of this.

I was worried that I could end up damaging the work of people who had nothing to do with what happened people who invested their time, effort, and passion into a project that was ultimately being led by someone who, in my view, was dishonest, manipulative, and unfair.

What frustrates me the most is seeing that same person now present himself to the world as if he is completely innocent, while portraying the people he hurt as if they were the ones who exploited him and treated him unfairly.

Who Is Ozel? (Not Important)

Ozel is youtube or known owner bite by night. I was one of the people who contributed to and appeared in his videos in 2023 and 2024.

Ozel became famous because of his kindness and gentle, understanding demeanor, which made me feel comfortable talking with him when I was young. I was one of the people who helped him at the beginning of his animation career, specifically with Blender Animation.

All I can say about him is that he loves asking his friends to make games for him

Why am I doing this? (Very Important)

For the past year, I haven't been able to feel at peace. I kept blaming myself for everything that he did in 2025, and I genuinely felt like I was responsible for all of it. I tried so hard to stay quiet because I thought that, eventually, time would help me move on. But months passed. Then an entire year passed, and I still couldn't move on.

It started affecting every part of my life. I couldn't sleep properly, my mental health got worse, and I even tried taking medication just to make things easier. I also did everything I could to keep my Twitter focused only on my work because I never wanted my account to turn into drama. But after carrying this weight for so long, I realized there was only one thing left that might finally give me some peace: speaking up.

I reached a point where I was struggling with constant self-blame, hurting myself, and even having suicidal thoughts. I knew I couldn't keep pretending I was okay anymore.

Yes, I did tell Eid before that I wanted to cancel Ozel. At the time, I truly did. After learning about the things he had done to other people, I was extremely angry. I went back and spoke with some of his former friends, and they showed me screenshots and videos of him insulting them and making sexual comments toward them. That made me even angrier because many of them were younger than he was.

But eventually, I realized that holding onto all of that anger was only destroying me even more. I'm not obsessed with Ozel. I was simply carrying far more than I could handle. Everything that happened left me with emotional scars that changed me, and that's the reason I've been the way I am.

To everyone who followed me because they only wanted to see my work, I'm sorry. I know this isn't what you signed up for. I just got tired of pretending that everything was fine when it wasn't. You can unfollow, but I won't stay silent any longer.

Allegations, Proofs and More

Chapter 5: The truth about Ozel, Let's Talk

lies, mocking highly sensitive topics, swearing, manipulation, NSFW, Suicide attempts, depression, Exploitation

Tips : Before reading

I'll combine the facts with my response to the document he wrote about me because he was afraid it would get out. So before you read anything, read Ozel's response first, and then read this page.

I'm including links throughout this document to provide additional context and strengthen the points I'm making. Most of the detailed evidence, screenshots, and videos are placed in those links so that this page remains clear, focused, and easy to read. Earlier sections may seem less important on their own, but they were included for a reason. They provide the context needed to better understand the lies Ozel told and the things he later did. Everything in this document serves a purpose.

If you only want the main story, you can skip the links and still understand the overall timeline. However, I recommend checking them whenever possible, as some contain videos of me being insulted or along with screenshots and other evidence that haven't been shown elsewhere.

Executive Summary / (TL;DR) (Summary)

1. To make a long story short, I never agreed to JoJo's project quickly. On the contrary, he kept bringing it up to me, and I kept refusing.

Later on, I asked if YSH was interested in making a JJBA game, they were open and agreed to make it with me. I was massively inexperienced at the time, so I wasn't able to contribute much besides marketing. Them and their friend [redacted] were scripting / modelling for the game. After a while, basically the same thing happened. Development ended pre-maturely, not enough progress was being made.

You know saying person name who work with us for years without getting and a dime is rude you can just say the modeller or whatever like why are you so keen on causing problems for other people?

there over 200 proof that there was really good progress

2. I didn't suddenly kick Ozel out like he said. On the contrary, I apologized to him, brought him back into the project, and gave him part of my share.

3. I didn't kick Ozel out of the HOT POTOTA GAME. Everyone was kicked out because my account got banned, and even after that, I continued working with Ozel normally. This happened in 2022, not after 2024 as Ozel claimed.

4. I'm not interested in Ozel's game. I'm upset with him because he used me. but why I used #bite by night hashtag cuz Ozel has no hashtag, and everyone knows him from Bite by Night. I used the hashtag and picture because all his fans are there, and it was the only way to let the people who follow him see the truth. I did not mean to hurt the game

5. The reason I posted pictures of Ozel in 2023 wasn't to dig up his past, but to prove why I was suspicious of him back then. I wasn't even present at the time. These are the groups, but when we're on calls, Ozel makes jokes that annoy me until he stopped and apologized. That's why I brought up the topic of these pictures, because he kept saying in the document that he didn't understand anything about these meanings.

6. Ozel only submitted 3 pages and contacted one of my friends, Ed, who told me that I didn't let them get to know each other, even though there are pictures and messages, and I let them talk to each other. Even when Ed messed up, I stood by him and took responsibility for the BTOOLS issue. So the idea that I manipulated Ed, despite the pictures proving that I said I trusted Ozel, is unconvincing.

7. Ozel kept saying that I was trying to hide something, and about the deleted messages, even though he remembers that the deleted messages were an attempt to fix things, but they were deleted because I wanted to start fresh. This was because I kept reading them after he told me that he had taken advantage of me. I deleted it in January 2026

But anyway, if you don't have enough proof, if you don't feel you have a response to the issue, communication would have been beneficial in ending the matter. But no, he still chose to lie to his followers to get a glimpse of the victim, presenting only 3 cropped photos as proofs (My Resposed to Document Ozel link)

Section 1 : Lies, Sexual Harassment & NSFW

Ozel accused me of never adding Ed to the group and tried to get Ed to repeat the same claim as if it wasn't planned or fabricated. The only evidence included in the document was 3 screenshots, most of them were cropped or edited. When I confronted Ozel and told him he was taking advantage of his followers' trust, he calmly replied that there were no lies in the document. I'm not going to claim right now that the entire document is false, but I'll leave that up to you to decide.

I was accused of removing Ozel from the project on May 1st, 2024 because of his actions. However, there are screenshots proving that Ozel was still part of the project throughout May and even into June. He deliberately cropped the screenshots to hide the messages where we were discussing the game passes and their prices, making it appear as if the conversation had ended there and these so many messages I was talking about the game with him after may.

Prior to deciding to make this document, I tried going to YSH's dms to ask them what was going on, then I found that all of his messages with me were deleted, save for a select few.

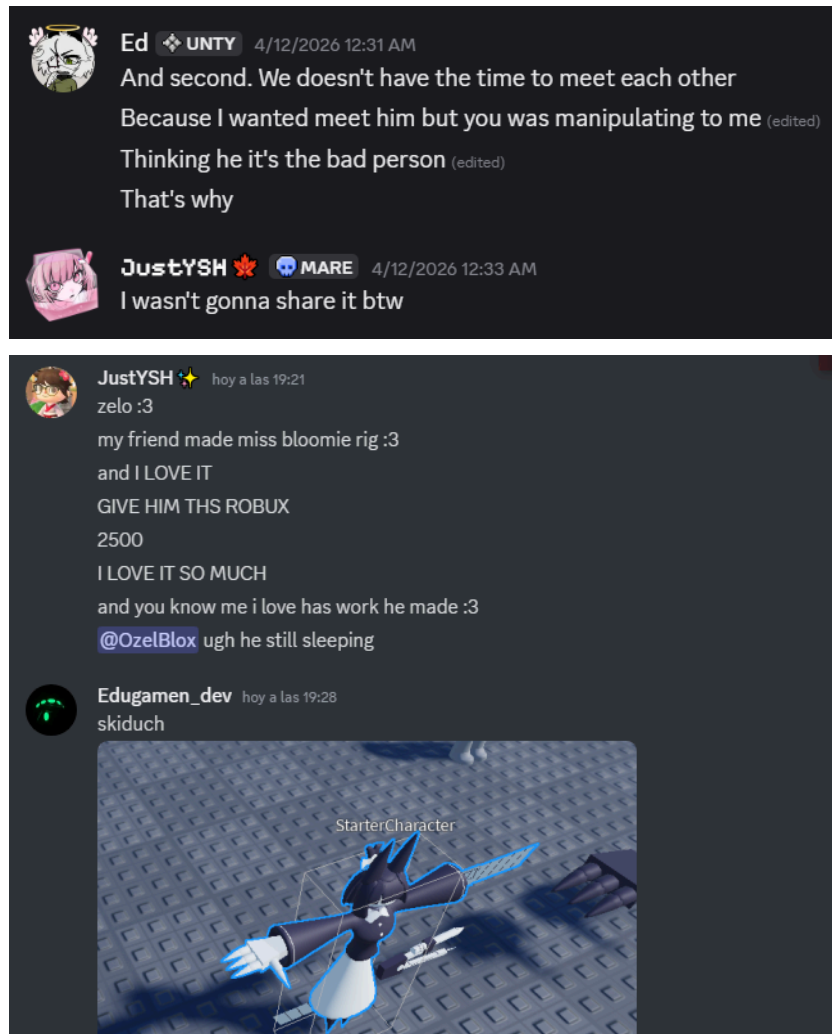

Ozel never contacted me, while I was the one trying to reach him all the time. It got to the point where he'd see my messages and mark me as "seen." When the big problem arose, Ozel didn't bother at all. He chose to edit his messages as if he didn't know about the R34 issue, even though he had previously spoken about it in a sexually explicit manner.

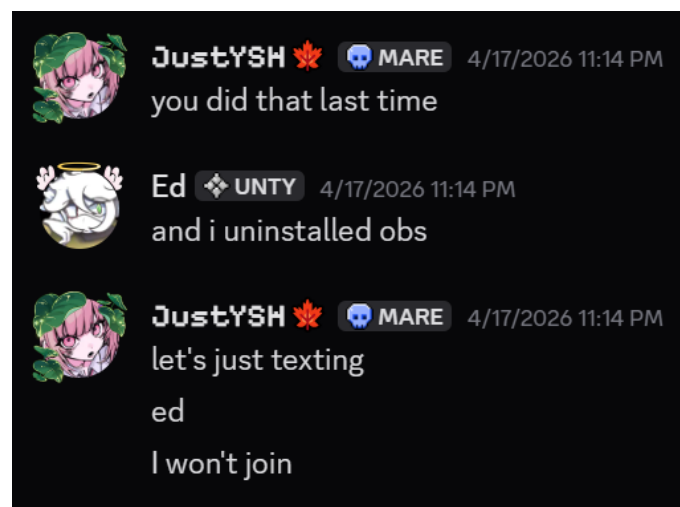

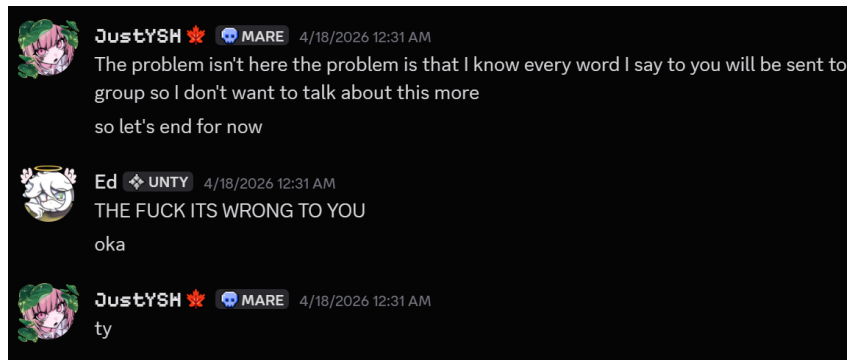

Ed claimed that I never allowed him to contact Ozel, and Ozel repeated the same claim, saying he had always wanted to talk to Ed but that I kept refusing. In reality, there are messages proving that I never stopped them from communicating. In fact, I wanted them to stay in contact. Every developer who worked on the project was able to communicate with Ozel.

I was also accused of manipulating Ed in order to make myself look innocent while making him look controlled. However, one of Ed's own messages shows him trying to provoke me and yelling at me in an attempt to paint me as the manipulative or bad person. This happened on April 25th, 2026, at around 11 PM, when they forced me into a group chat without my consent just so they could insult me.

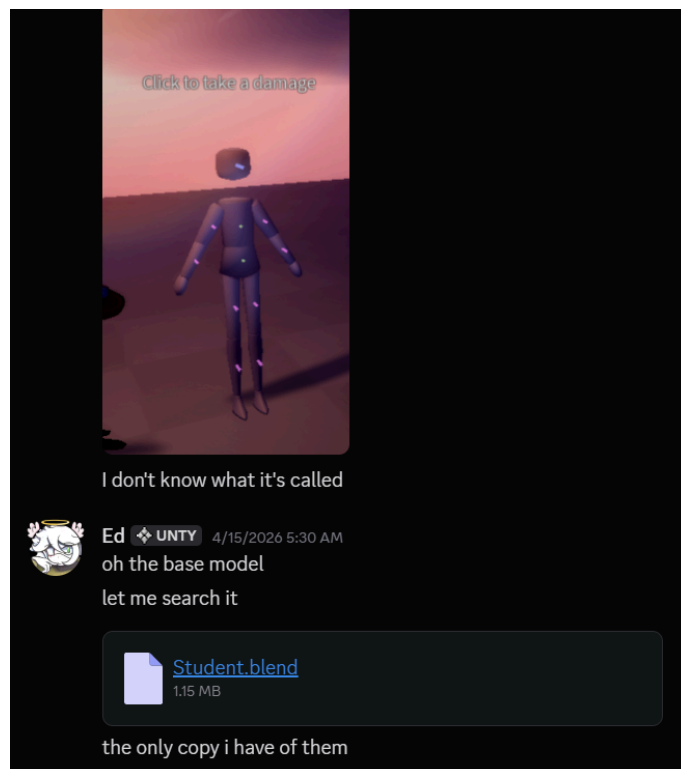

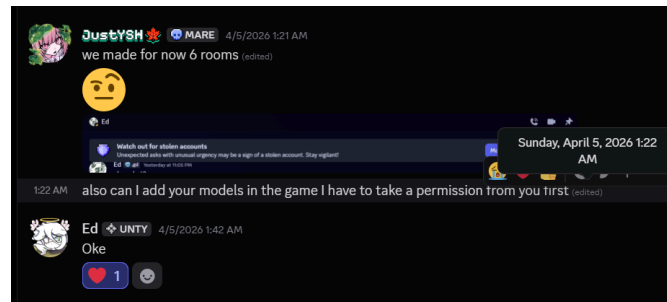

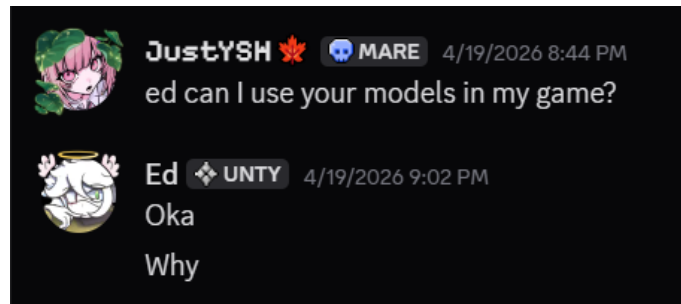

Ed is defending Ozel more than defending himself. and At first, Ozel claimed that I wasn't responsible for causing problems with my old friends. After I showed him screenshots proving otherwise, he admitted that he had nothing to do with it. Despite that, he blocked me because of other people who didn't do anything with our issue anyway, even though he had already said it wasn't his business.

? isn't this talking about my builds bad way 😞
Ozel BITE 4/15/2026 3:49 PM
That's none of my concern sadly, it's your development not mone

And even Ed is telling him that I'm using his work without his permission, even though I had asked his permission beforehand to use his work in my game, and he fully agreed.

Ozel also claimed that he was only trying to place a bomb model from the Toolbox. The problem is that we already had a bomb model before that, so there was no reason to look for another one. Most of the people in the group were very young, and some of them didn't even know what R63 or NSFW content was. I'm not blaming him here, but this is why I was suspecting him at that time

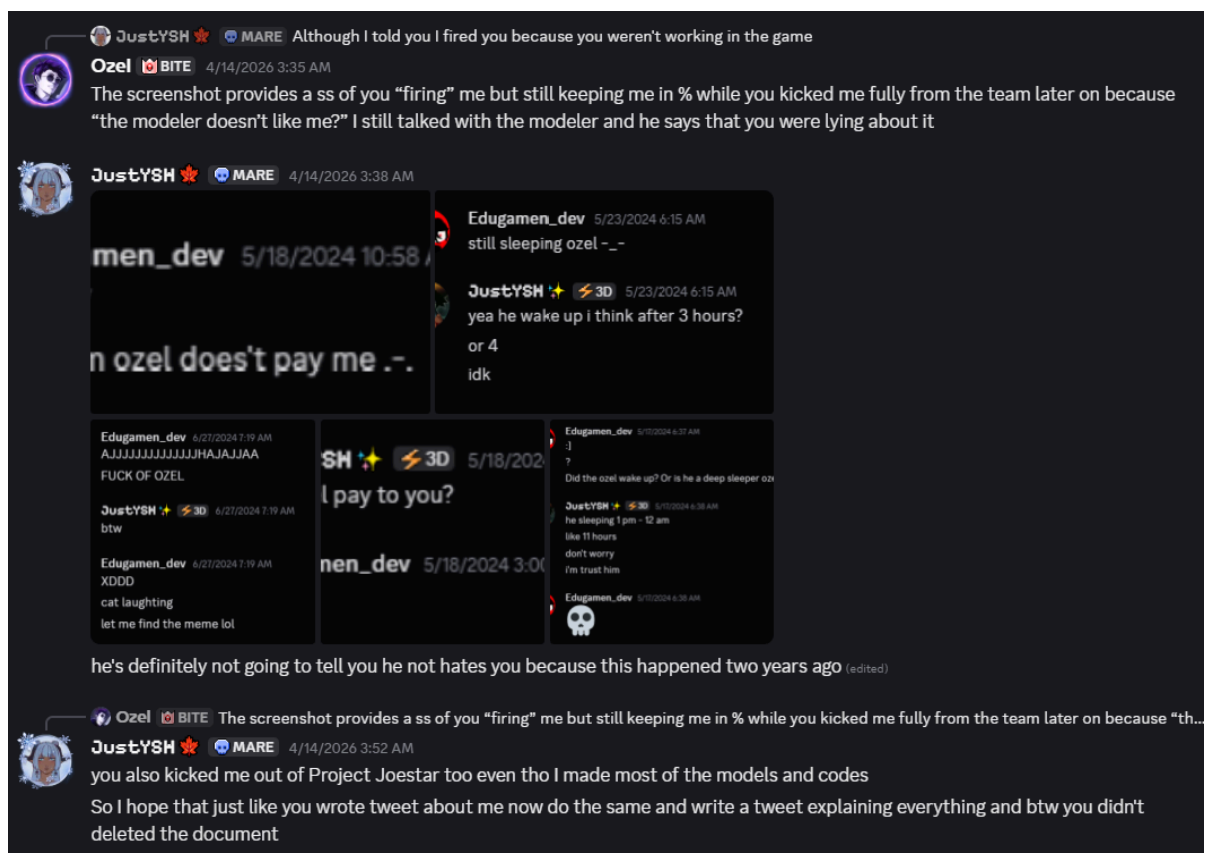

One of the developers from the project even accused Ozel of giving him the idea to place the model in my game so he could look at it himself. This is just one example of Ozel's inappropriate and discriminatory behavior.

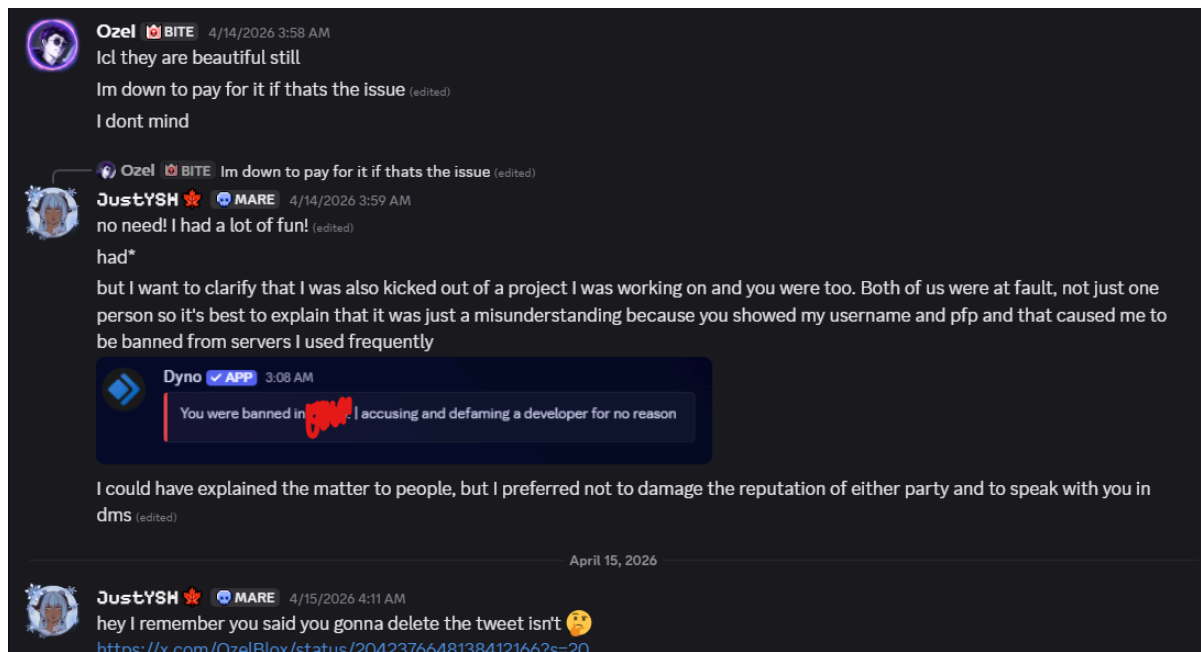

Even regarding the JoJo project, Ozel referred to work that other people had spent days and hours creating as "short development," as if he was mocking their efforts. Ironically, he himself admitted that he barely did anything. Considering those people helped him with the project, I think that was a very disrespectful thing to say.

Section 2 : Exploitation

Ozel didn't just exploit me; he exploited most of the people I knew, which put me in an embarrassing position, especially since I was the one who introduced them to him. They ended up leaving disappointed. That's why I was so affected after realizing what I'd done in 2026. I wasn't the only one affected; I influenced several people, some of whom had been working for Ozel for years, like the person whose name Ozel mentioned in his document for no reason.

The idea that Ozel fired me because I fired him from a project is a bit unconvincing, especially since Ozel wasn't actually doing anything at FPE, while JoJo did a lot of things. In the end, when I told Ozel about it, he said, "If that's the problem, I can pay." It felt like he was trying to buy my satisfaction. I didn't want Robux or money anymore, and I thought it was over. But this incident left me with a complex about working with people because he didn't fire me not from just one or two projects. Bale fired me from every project I worked on for years, so of course I'm annoyed when he comes to me at the end and tells me he can give me Robux after he caused me a contract to work with people.

Section 3 : Manipulating

Ozel tried to make people believe that I was trying to hide something. He assumed that I was actually hiding something. All the messages I could find, the deleted messages, were messages I was trying to make up with Ozel. I deleted them because I felt he didn't deserve all this and because I was tired of reading them. I read them a million times to the point that I memorized every word. I wanted to sleep peacefully because the trauma was still too much for me to recover from after a whole year.

Although he actually remembers what happened and what I was trying to offer him, he used it as a fact that I deleted to hide something, so he could use it against me.

Ozel repeatedly tried to place the blame on me. For example, he claimed that I was the one who made our friendship become distant because I hadn't contacted him for eight months. However, only a few months earlier, Ozel had reached out to someone he hadn't spoken to in over two years, yet he never blamed that person the way he blamed me. Once I realized that, it became clear to me that the issue wasn't the lack of communication. He simply wanted to cut me off. He wasn't upset because I hadn't talked to him. He was upset because I came back after he no longer needed me.

He also claimed that I was responsible for our friendship becoming distant, even though he was the one saying he didn't want to continue our friendship anymore. There were also times when he ignored my apologies, even though I reached out to him multiple times. I never understood why he kept blaming me. The constant accusations eventually made me blame myself. By January 2026, I genuinely believed everything was my fault, and the guilt became overwhelming because people kept blaming me for things I don't believe happened the way they were being described.

Two years later, Ozel finally admitted that both of us had made mistakes, but only after everything that had already happened. By then, I had already reached the point where I needed medication because of the stress I had been under. The entire experience also left me with lasting anxiety about working with developers and YouTubers.

Section 4 : Evasion

Everything changed once he realized I was planning to speak publicly. He knew I had been one of the people most affected by his actions, and that is when he suddenly claimed that he had "accidentally" discovered my deleted messages. That explanation doesn't make sense, because he had already seen my earlier message where I blamed myself. He later claimed that he wanted to contact me but decided not to after seeing the deleted messages, and instead chose to publish his document. That justification was difficult to believe. Even countries with serious conflicts don't choose the most extreme option without attempting communication first.

The first person who tried to re-establish contact was me, not Ozel. I gave him an opportunity to talk, but instead he blocked me for other people who don't do anything with our situation. It seemed like he had very little to use against me, so he involved people from my old friends instead.

When Ozel told me he had screenshots that could get me into trouble, I told him that it sounded like taking responsibility for what he had said, he shifted the blame to his lawyer. To this day, I still don't understand the lawyer's role. It felt more like an intimidation tactic than a genuine legal process. Ozel kept saying that he wanted to resolve everything but that his lawyer wouldn't allow it, which only made me wonder who was actually making the decisions.

On April 13, 2026, near the end of the day, Ozel claimed he had an important meeting while he was actively playing Roblox. It felt like he was deliberately delaying the situation because he didn't want to delete the document. Even after he eventually agreed to remove it, I asked him to also publish a clarification. He refused, saying that if he simply deleted the document without explaining why, his followers probably wouldn't notice. I couldn't understand the point of deleting it without correcting the false impression it had already created.

By that point, Ozel knew the situation had seriously affected me. Publishing a clarification would likely have resulted in criticism toward him for acting too quickly and allowing people to attack me and even send me death wishes over things I never did. Instead of correcting the record publicly, he chose not to address it.

Section 5 : Manipulating the Timeline

Ozel also altered the timeline of events. He claimed that the "bomb game" incident happened after the FPE game, when it had actually taken place years earlier, in 2022. This is important because it creates the false impression that I left him because of the bomb game incident. In reality, I stayed with him long after that happened. Changing the dates only misrepresents what actually occurred.

Section 6 : Ableist, Swearing

Ozel tried to bring up the topic of his injury, saying he was in an accident and hurt, and that I didn't care. In one of the messages I was sending to Ozel, I told him that I actually did care about the matter.

Btw, as you know, Ozel was making fun of something I was bullied a lot about, something I'd told him repeatedly, including my broken English. "Ozel used to comfort me, but when our conflict began and he discarded our friendship, he completely shifted. He began using my insecurities against me, sarcastically telling me to 'go fix my English.' Even though he knew this was a deeply personal struggle that had affected my life, he treated it as nothing more than a joke.

Section 7 : Threats

Section 8: Racism

Ozel kept saying n-word jokingly in calls with his friends, which made me think it was just a joke and that it didn't have any meaning, especially since I didn't understand any English and I'd said it myself before. Then one of my other friends pointed out that it had a negative meaning. After realizing it had a negative connotation, I deleted all the messages where I'd used that phrase. I had no background knowledge or understanding; it was the first time in my life I'd spoken to a foreigner and the first time I'd spoken to someone in English, especially since I was so young. I apologize if I've ever said it to anyone before.

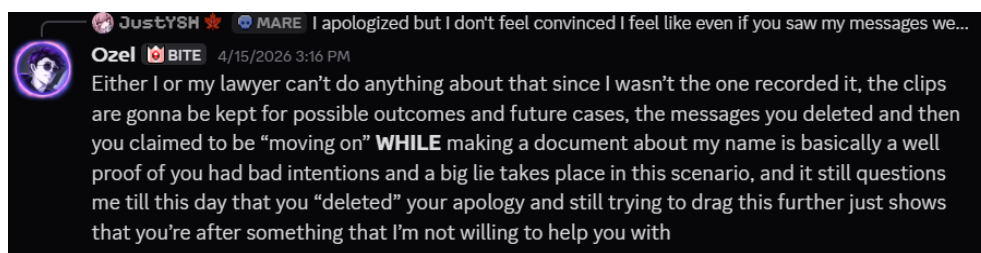

Even though Ozel knew its meaning and was saying it jokingly, he would respond in a way that showed he understood everything he was saying.

Let's talk (It's your choice to read or not)

This will be my only response to the doc, and how much my patience has worn me down. If you don't want to read my response and prefer a shorter version of the document, you can look at Conclusion.

I'm not trying to chase after Ozel and dig up every last detail. I've gathered what I can prove in his response, which was supported by evidence of his lies. The very idea of someone making a document and accusing the other person of things they didn't actually do with only 3 photos as proof is wrong, and that's what annoyed me about Ozel.

I'm not trying to play the victim. Yes, I talked about sensitive topics for me to explain why I chose to make this document in the first place, so it wouldn't be interpreted as hatred or malice. But the idea of your closest friend recording you on video, and then Ozel saying things like, "I wasn't the one who recorded it, the clips are going to be kept for possible outcomes and future cases,"

April 15, 3:16 PM AST. I never mentioned that moved on, I don't know why he saying that. I told him that I tried, but I couldn't.

Of course, I'm going to get angry and upset because I trusted him. He actually broke my trust in him. Of all the people I chose to talk to about my problem, he disappointed me by saying he was just afraid of a fight breaking out, despite the fact that he went on Ozel DMs and spread rumors in Ozel's document, acting as if he were the one harmed, even though I took responsibility for his actions with Ozel to avoid any problems with him. And that someone interfering in other matters between my problem and other people is disgusting. Despite Ozel's many problems, I didn't get involved in his other issues; I was content with just taking pictures of what I saw in my experience.

In short, using fans' trust as a tool is disgusting. he made a document accusing someone when he's done worse things himself. I'm not trying to play the angel here, and if I were, I would have tried to mention my own flaws, but I was angry with him and ed. from they way ed chose to came to ozel as if he was affected by something we'd already forgiven each other for. The word "move on" doesn't mean I've let him go and forgiven him. I haven't forgiven him after realizing what he was doing to my mind. The way he treated me like I was a fool at 2024 and 2025 and that really bothered me when I realised it since I can't realise anything because of my fucking ADHD, and that's bullshit to me.

I apologize if I got angry, but the more I think about it, the angrier I get. I hated the disorder I got; it was what made me realize nothing until months later. I could have avoided all these problems and been in better health by now.

Even his apology was fake. He really just wanted to apologize to appear mature and forgiving, but I definitely won't accept it. How can someone try to appear mature and claim I apologized to him while writing things about me that never actually happened? Okay, I understand he was leaving for America, but presenting three fake and cropped photos as evidence means you're not just exploiting your words, you're exploiting your fame. You're actually exploiting the intelligence and trust of your followers.

It's sad that someone who has people who value him would sell them out just because "the modeller didn't like me, you chose your path," and because of a forced dismissal. I can't sit in my laptop and working for hours and days and months without break It's will be end knowing the project won't be completed and that I'll be the one who suffers. So, I definitely had no other option but to quit and join my friends' project because I know Ozel will refuse. Ozel was already strongly opposed to the issue of his %, so imagine what he'd do about this issue. Transferring the project to a second project even on April 20, 2024, it was very clear from the way I spoke that I was extremely tired.

November 15, 2021 : Our First Conversation (Important)

My friendship with Ozel started strangely. We first met in a Funk game. I didn't know who he was, so at the time, he wasn't famous and didn't have a YouTube channel. But when I started watching the way he played, I was impressed, so I asked him how he was so good at the game.

He told me that he had been playing it for a long time and that he played it every day. I felt comfortable talking to him, and I ended up telling him something I normally didn't like telling people, that I was a map designer. I don't remember exactly why I brought it up or what led to the topic, but from what I remember, Ozel made me feel comfortable through the way he talked. It felt like I was talking to one of my old friends, even though it was our very first conversation.

Ozel was very similar to me. I later found out that he also designed maps, but he didn't really know how, so most of the time he relied C. help him make games too.

Ozel told me that he wanted us to make a game together for fun. At the time, I didn't know what kind of game it would be. He simply replied, "Let's make a horror game!!!" I was excited by the idea because I had been looking for someone who understood the things I liked and was around my age.

I don't know why Ozel later talked about the game we made six years ago as if it were some serious project, when in reality it was just a project made for fun and to get to know each other better.

November 20, 2021. Working on the horror game tougher

November 24, 2021: More Than Just a Game (Not Important)

In the end, I told Ozel that I was getting bored with the game and asked if we could make a different one instead, a simulator game. I've never really enjoyed making story-based games, but I still benefited from that project because it helped me get to know him much better.

We exchanged over 800 messages in a single day. We talked for hours without stopping. I listened to him while I worked on the game for him.

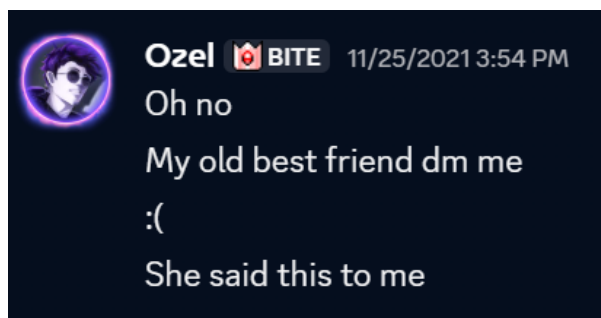

November 24, 2021. At some point, I told Ozel that I was getting bored with the horror game and wanted us to work on a different game instead.

November 25, 2021: Ozel Girlfriend (Important)

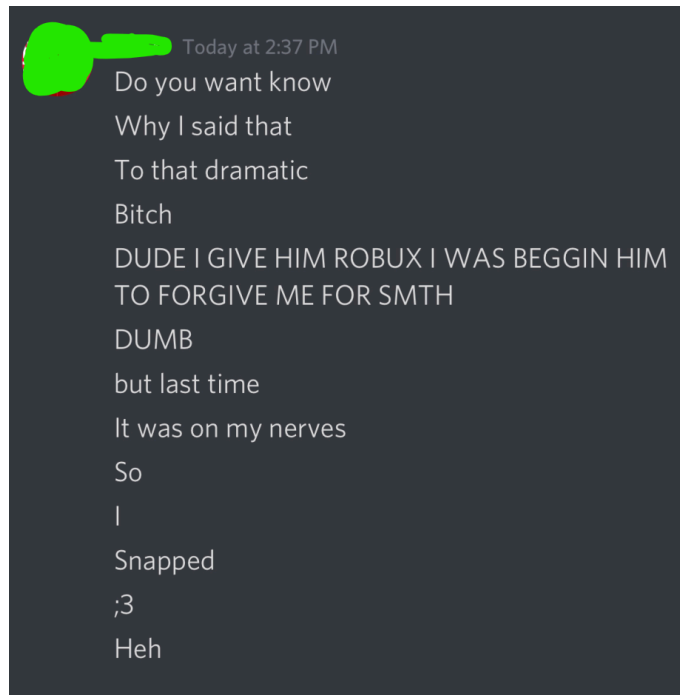

This information is important to clarify the story and was used to illustrate it.

The next day, Ozel contacted me to tell me that his girlfriend had left him and told him to insult her for no reason. At that moment, I felt sorry for him and hated the girl and why she insulted Ozel for no reason. I tried to comfort Ozel and console him, but I didn't understand the root of the problem between them.

December 7, 2021: Turning Down the JoJo Project (Important)

After we finished working on the simulator game, Ozel asked me if I wanted to work on a third game with him, a Jojo/JJBA game. At the time, I did not have the time or energy to commit to another long-term project. I wanted to focus on my studies, my own projects, and avoid putting unnecessary pressure on myself.

But in the end, I turned the offer down. I told him that this type of game was not really my style and that I did not want to make a commitment I might not be able to keep. I knew that if I agreed to join, I would likely be expected to stay involved for a long period of time, and I was not confident that I could do that. Rather than start something and leave halfway through, I chose to be honest from the beginning.

it was the right decision for me. My priorities at the time were changing, and I wanted to focus on building my own future instead of committing myself to another project I was unsure about.

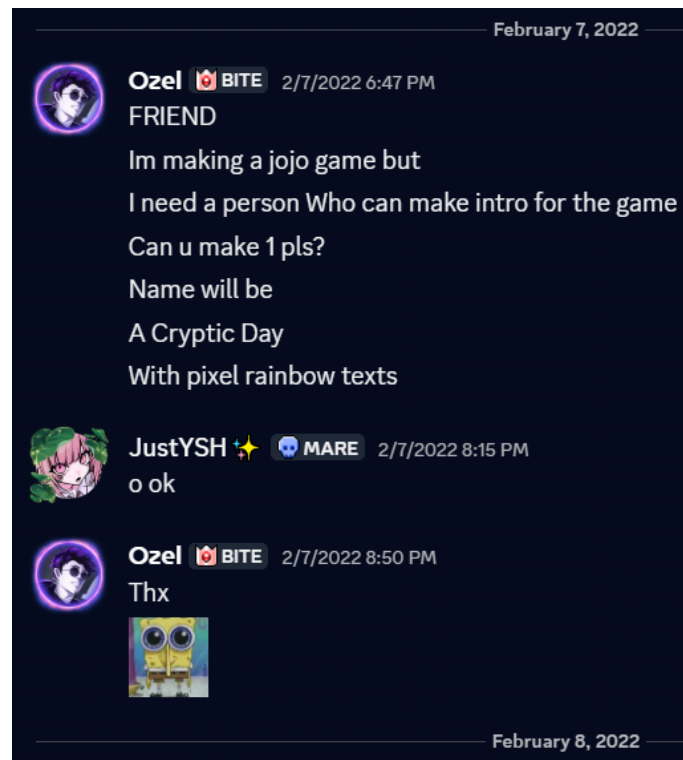

November 24, 5:37-5:38 PM AST.

February 7, 2022: A year after I rejected JoJo's idea (Important)

Nearly a year had passed since I originally turned down the idea of working on the JoJo project. I had already explained to Ozel that the project was not really something I was interested in and that it did not match the type of games I enjoyed making. I tried to be honest about that from the beginning.

At some point later, Ozel asked me again if I could help with a specific part of the project. This time, I agreed. However, despite agreeing to help, I never ended up contributing anything meaningful. I made an effort to understand the project and its source material, but I struggled to connect with it. JoJo was simply not a style that appealed to me, nor was it the type of project I felt naturally motivated to work on.

my lack of involvement was not because I wanted to cause problems or because I was unwilling to help. The reality was much simpler: I was trying to participate in something that never matched my interests in the first place.

November 24, 5:37-5:38 PM AST.

February 13, 2022: After Day, When (No) Means Nothing to Him (Important)

The day after, I already explained to Ozel that I was no longer interested in the idea of working on a JoJo game, but he asked me the same question again and again for the third time.

This was the point where the situation started to frustrate me. It was not because he asked once, but because I felt like I had already been clear about my reasons. From the very beginning, I had explained that if I joined the project, there was a high chance I would not stay until the end. I knew myself well enough to understand that this was not the type of game I was passionate about, and I did not want to make promises I could not keep.

I had already told him that a JoJo game was not the kind of project I naturally enjoyed working on. It was not my preferred style, and I did not see myself staying committed to it long-term. Because of that, being asked again after I had already explained my position made me feel like my answer was not being taken seriously.

February 15, 2022 (8:35 PM), Ozel Requests More Game Development (Important)

A few hours after I agreed to let him make a JoJo game, he said, "we can also make fnaf game" I knew he wouldn't help because he didn't know anything about development, so I knew I'd have to do all of this on my own. I felt pressured before I even started, so I refused and told him, "Let's do one thing, not two."

November 24, 5:37-5:38 PM AST. Ozel keep asking me about working at so many game in the same time

February 16, 2022, Ozel Requests More Game Development (Not Important)

November 24, 5:37-5:38 PM AST

When I asked him, I really wanted him to choose FNAF, but instead, he chose something else. He was thinking we should make an army or war game, and that would be the third game.

In short, I'd make FNAF, JoJo's Bizarre Adventure, and a war game all by myself because, as I said, Ozel doesn't know how to develop in Roblox Studio, so it would be very tiring. In the end, we decided on one thing and chose another game because it's impossible for me to make more than one game at the same time; my mind would explode, and this is all just for him.

November 24, 5:37-5:38 PM AST. For the fourth time, Ozel asks me about Jojo

March 3, 2022: It Was My Game From Day One (Very Important)

I told ozel at the time that I was going to make a game. He was very keen to help me, but I told him I really needed developers who could help us with the project. He said he knew one of his friends, C., who knew how to make models. I agreed to that and said I would also bring one of my friends. We all agreed to make a game on my main account temporarily until we made a group where he would be the one to play the game, and it would be shared among all of us.

March 10, 2022, Main Account Suspension, Bomb game (Very Important)

Sensitive sexual details

This section deals with sexual and sensitive topics, how the issue ended with my account being banned, and how the developers reacted.

At the time, I was working on a small Roblox project of my own. After I mentioned it to Ozel, he offered to help. I did not mind. In fact, I appreciated the offer. The only thing I asked was if another person could join as well because I needed help with models.

Eventually, there were 4 of us working on the project. I handled the programming and UI. Ozel focused on building. Another contributor worked on models alongside one of my friends. The project itself was not particularly complicated. It was a small game, and for a while everything felt normal. We spent time working together, testing features, and talking about ideas. Nothing seemed out of place.

One day, while working on the game, I noticed a strange model placed in the middle of the game. I start looking at the model I was so young at that time and one of my friends and ozel was around the model looking at the model too. The model contained explicit sexual anatomy. She had long hair and nipples.

The reason just let you know this so clearly is because of how uncomfortable it made me feel. At that point in my life, sexual topics already made me extremely uncomfortable. I had my own reasons for that, and I was not someone who found those kinds of jokes funny (photos, models) at that time. I was young, confused, and honestly disgusted by seeing something like that inside a project that I was responsible for.

My laptop at the time was soo slow. Roblox Studio took a long time to load when I wanted to test something, so I often used a different workflow when testing my scripts. Instead of repeatedly running tests inside Studio, I would save the game and test it directly through Roblox because it was significantly faster on my hardware.

A few hours later, I received a moderation notice. At first, I thought there had been some kind of mistake. Then I saw the punishment. My account had been permanently terminated. That account had been with me for years. It contained my work, my codes, my history on the platform, and more

I contacted Roblox and attempted to appeal. The response I received made it clear that the account had been terminated for violating platform policies. The first thing that came to mind was the explicit model I had seen earlier. Whether it had been intended as a joke or not +18, it was the only thing I could think of that might have caused such a severe moderation action. I did not start accusing people, I posted a screenshot showing that my account had been terminated.

Before anybody directly accused anyone else, Ozel became defensive. He repeatedly insisted that he was not responsible and began directing suspicion toward my friend. I didn't believe him because my friend is younger than Ozel and younger than me

The conversation quickly shifted away from the fact that my account had just been deleted and toward figuring out who was responsible. That bothered me. I was not interested in finding someone to hate. I was not happy watching friends blame each other. I had just lost an account that meant a lot to me. What I wanted was a simple explanation. Why was explicit content placed inside the game? Why did it happen at all? Why was my trust broken?

Instead, the discussion became increasingly emotional. Ozel repeatedly emphasized how upset he was and how strongly he was reacting to the situation. but as I know he was keep saying that he was crying. Meanwhile, I felt like I was being pushed into the position of calming everyone else down despite being the person who had actually lost the account. Eventually, I told everyone that I was not angry and that I forgave them. Anyway, I do not think I said that because I was completely okay with what happened. I think I said it because I wanted the situation to end before it destroyed more friendships.

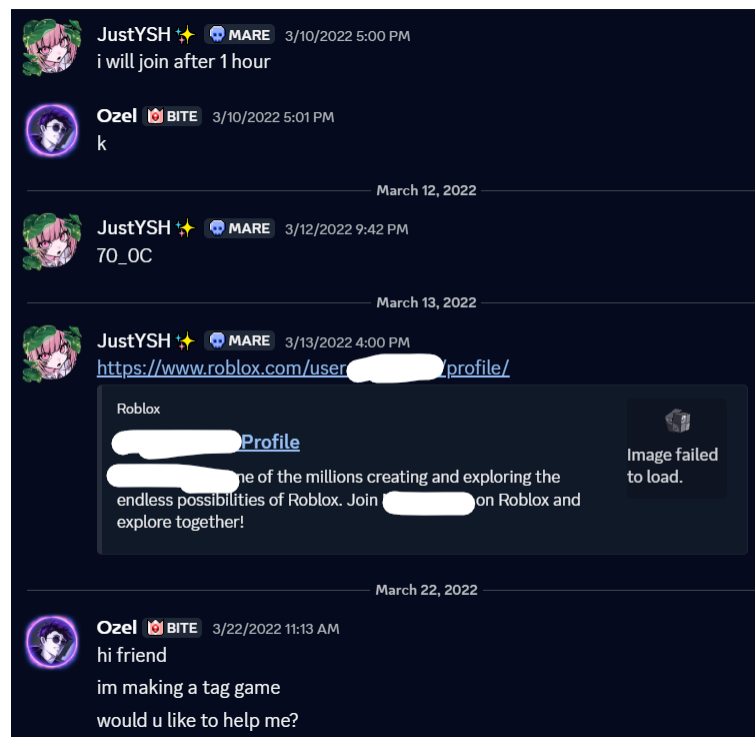

I closed the conversation, accepted the loss, and tried to move forward. For years

November 24, 5:37-5:38 PM AST. Roblox send me a banned message that my main account deleted forever and I can't do anything about it

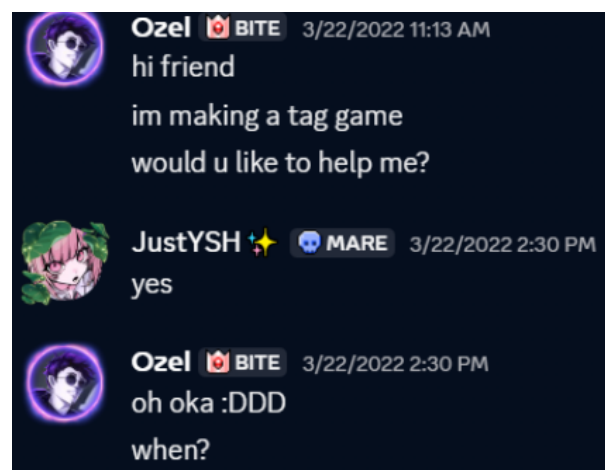

I tried to take a screenshots but roblox hide my info account

March 22, 2022: Ozel didn't care about my account (Important)

March 10 - 22, 5:00 PM - 11:13 AM AST. Ozel didn't care about my account; he even asked me if I could make him a game, even though I had just lost my account.

After my account was banned, Ozel contacted me again 12 days later. He didn't ask, "Why did you kick me?" as he mentioned in his doc or ask about my mental state he simply said, "I'm working on a TAG game. Can you help me?" I was upset that my account had been banned 12 days prior,

March 22, 2:30 PM AST. Ozel is asking me if I can make him a game, and when

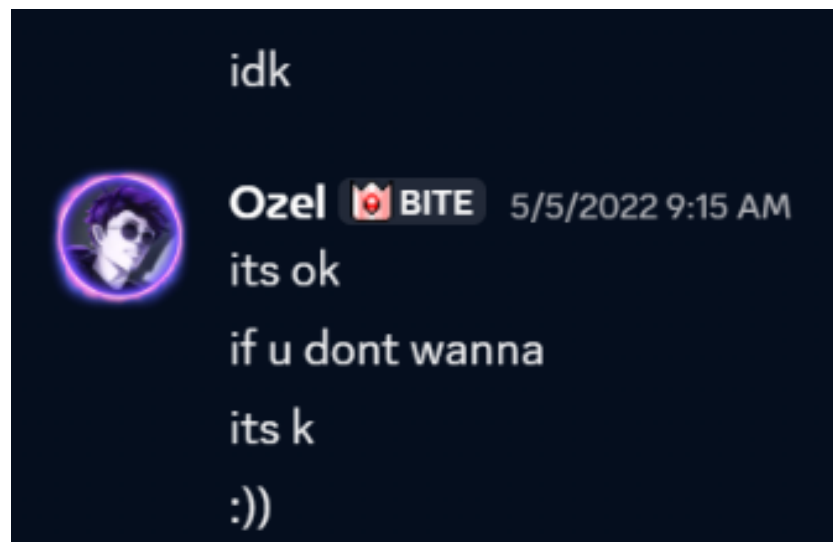

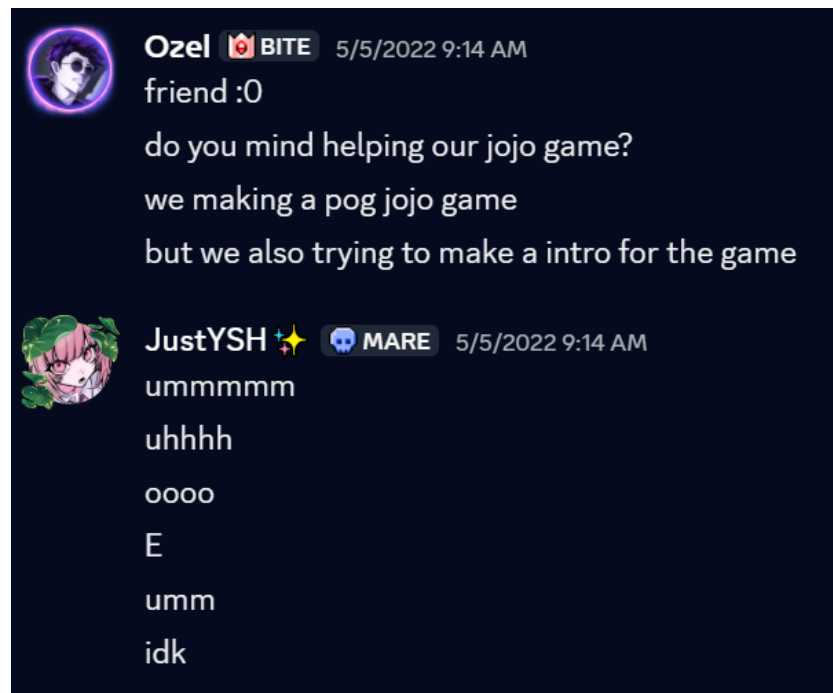

And Ozel sensed that he had been a bit rude. So, mid-conversation, he said, "I still feel sad ;((, cuz your acc got deleted :(((" I calmly replied, "It's okay dude" so as not to worry him about my account being deleted. Because he knew I'd lost an account I'd worked on for a very long time, and I was sad about losing it, but I didn't want anyone to worry about it, and we continued together. Yes, I was incredibly kind, to the point that I didn't insult Ozel or argue with him about it; I just made sure he didn't worry about it.

March 22, 2:31-2:36 PM AST.

May 5, 2022: The Next Day, Ozel asked me about JoJo, and I refused again (Not Important)

June 12, 1:44 PM AST. Ozel asked me for the fifth time if he wanted me to work with him on Jojo. Although I refused, I felt he was manipulating me and pressuring me to agree. He was just waiting for the moment when we would become close friends so he could take advantage of the opportunity and get me to work with him.

May 5, 2022: The Next Day, Ozel asked me about JoJo, and I refused again (Important)

June 12, 1:44 PM AST. Ozel knew that asking me directly wouldn't help, so he chose to talk to me about his problem and the fact that he didn't have a script. It was almost as if he was hinting that he needed my help, but I agreed because I knew he would come back to me more than once, especially since I felt sorry for him.

June 5, 2023: Working on JJBA (Important)

When I first started working on the JJBA game, I had no idea what JoJo even was. I was lost and didn't know what I was supposed to be doing. Ozel helped me by recommending I watch the anime and sent me videos to help me understand the style and how everything worked. I appreciated that

At first, I wasn't really attached to the game or the idea since it wasn't my usual style, but slowly, I started enjoying it and genuinely fell in love with the concept. Ozel created a group with his friends, and we all started working together. The first month had no pressure at all. We were all cooperative, and I even remember helping Ozel with something complicated at one point.

A few months June, 11th, 2023: 3:26 PM, later, I brought my friend into the project. I wanted him involved so we could all enjoy it together, so the idea that I added him immediately, as Ozel claimed, isn't accurate; it was months later.

JustYSH ✨ started a call that lasted 7 hours. 6/12/2023 1:44 PM

June 12, 1:07 PM AST. I invited one of my best friends to help us make some models and have fun.

June 12, 1:43 - 1:44 PM AST. Ozel asked me if he could help us, and I told him yes since my friend would be busy for a few hours.

June 12, 1:44 PM AST. Asked Ozel if he wanted to join the VC/call to see, and we stayed on the call for 7 hours.

Eventually, the team started getting smaller until there were only 4 of us left, but I was still enjoying it and becoming more and more of a JoJo fan. Once I fully understood the style, I rebuilt the game from scratch because the previous developers had made mistakes.

Sadly, the team kept shrinking until it was just me, my friend, the animator, and Ozel. That's when the problems started, which made the game start to be really difficult, especially since (modeling and building, etc) isn't easy for just 1 developer, since I was the leader-developer at that time.

Ozel helped by playtesting and sending us music and sounds, but it wasn't enough. We genuinely needed a new developer who could help us.

January 27, 2024: Burnout from JoJo (Important)

When my friend and I were working on JoJo, we were under a bit of pressure. Everything was easy, but we still had to do the animations, which were difficult for us, so the development was delayed. At that time, Ozel asked me if I could help him with the scripts and UI for another game

The animator's laptop broke, and she had to stop working on the game, so I became responsible for the animation. At first, I was trying to teach Ozel how to animate in Blender, but I didn't really have enough time, especially since I was trying to balance teaching him while also working on his Jojo game.

My friend started getting busy and couldn't support us like before, so I had to tell Ozel that I couldn't build a whole game by myself.

Ozel replied with sadness, asking why we even needed to bring more developers in the first place. I explained to him that I'm not a robot, and I get tired too under work pressure.

At the beginning, the work on Jojo was properly organized, and no one was under heavy pressure. But over time, people started leaving the team, and things became messy, which made the game pause temporarily until we could reorganize everything. First, we didn't have a source of income to continue the game, and Ozel was converting all the Robux he received into Devex (real money), so I didn't want him to hire developers with money.

The game didn't stop without a reason, as Ozel said; it stopped because I reached a point where I couldn't keep pushing myself without burning out. And at the same time, Ozel sometimes asks me to do things for him not related to JJBA, which increases the pressure even more.

I was thinking of making a less expensive and simpler game that might open up a source of income so we could continue the game, especially since JJBA is a game that needs a lot of animation and models.

I also made a mistake by overworking myself while being stressed about delays. I always have this issue where I push myself too hard when I'm anxious about the project taking too long, because I'm scared that if we delay too much, the game might die.

The point is, I told him to write down what I should do, so he gave me details until I went shopping. When I came back from shopping, I was surprised by the information that I couldn't do.

January 28, 2024: I can't hold it (Important)

January 28, 1:07 PM AST. some how ozel asking me why do we need more people as if he It's like he's that no need more people and only I'm working alone and as he don't want to not losing anything.

I tried to explain to Ozel that I couldn't do all this and that I was already tired of JoJo. I'd done so many things, and I kept having to add more, all on my own with no one to help me. Ozel replied, "Why do we need people?" I felt like he knew I had all the necessary skills and that we didn't need anyone. I tried to beg him to hire people somehow, but Ozel had converted all his Robux to DevEx, so there was no way I could hire anyone, and I didn't want him to hire people for money. I preferred Robux.

I suggested we make a simpler, easier game that would be a better source of income, so we could continue JoJo, since no one could help us right now. My friend was busy with exams that would determine his university placement, the animator's computer broke, and some developers had left the project. I was the only one left. Ozel replied, "Do you have any ideas?" I told him no, honestly, but let me continue with JoJo for now until you can come up with an idea we can continue with.

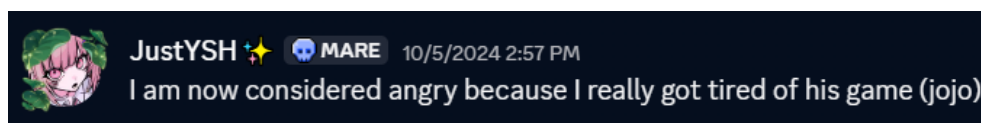

January 28, 12:45 AM AST

I couldn't keep going with Jojo. I was honestly exhausted and mentally drained. I had too many things on my plate at the same time my studies, ozel, my health, and my overall mental state. it all piled up and i just couldn't handle it anymore. i ended up stopping jojo completely because if i kept forcing myself, my mental health was just going to get worse.

The thing is, I actually went back and redid Jojo like three times because I was trying to get a result that would satisfy ozel or something he might like. Even though he didn't pay me anything, I was still trying to please him because I cared about the friendship and I genuinely wanted him to be happy with the outcome.

I think I was just pushing myself too far for something that wasn't balanced. But at the time, I was just trying to make it work.

October 5, 2:57 PM AST. I contacted one of my friends, venting to him how I was really tired

January - April 2024: Throughout these months (Not Important)

Ozel and I were trying to create several games. I tried to make an RNG game and other games, but we weren't successful. I felt hopeless about finding a source of income, even though I knew Ozel was making thousands of dollars from YouTube. I didn't want him to spend his own money; I preferred him to pay in Robux. But he would transfer all his Robux to Devex without telling me or leaving anything for the project.

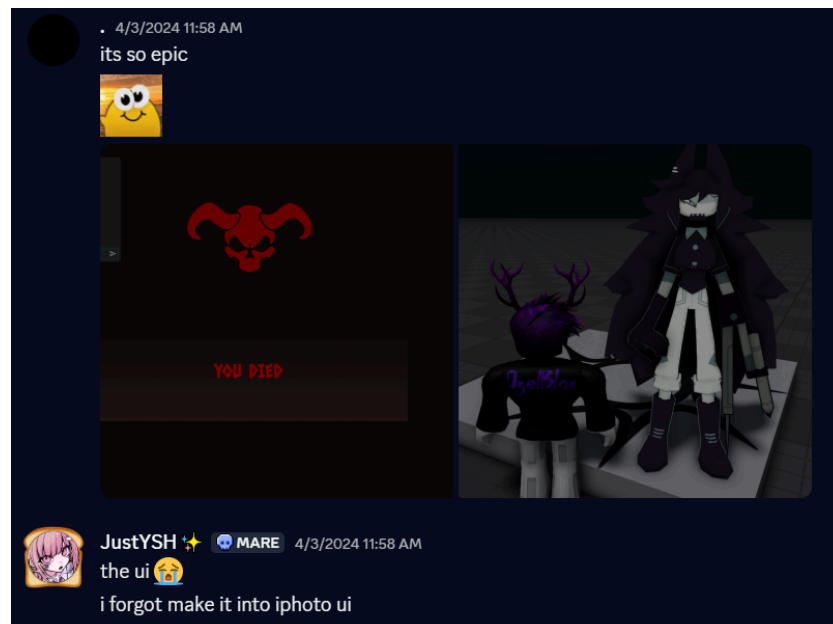

Months and days passed until April 2024.

April 3, 2024: New Suggestion (Important)

I received a mention from Ozel on Discord. He had previously sent messages in our JoJo group asking if we could work with him on an FPE game. He suggested the idea to me, and I agreed because I was trying to find a game we could monetize so I could continue working on JoJo.

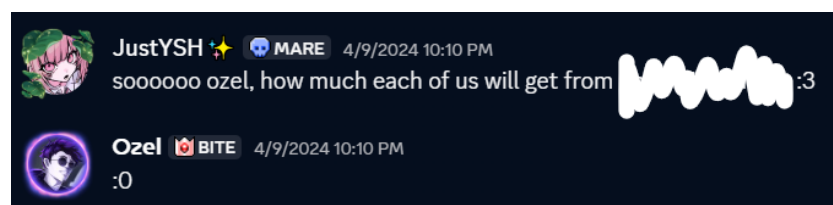

On the first day. I asked him to be the owner of the game because I don't like to be the owner and don't know how to control developers.

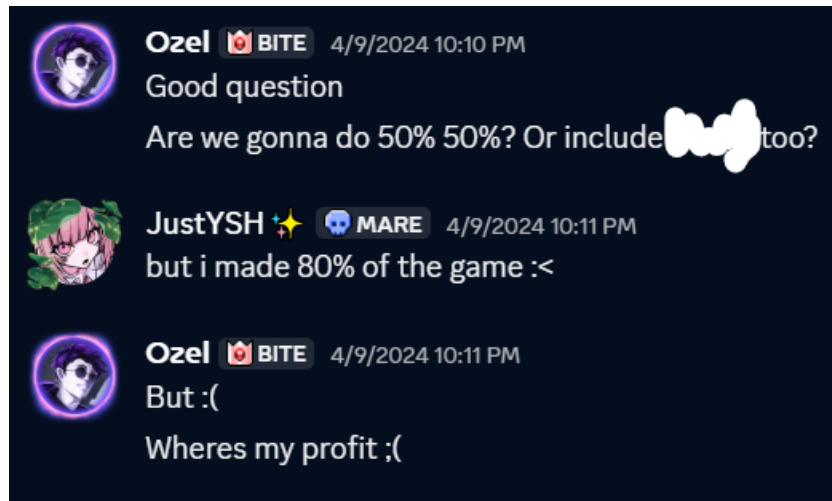

So, we started building a simple, temporary structure together, but I deleted his building so we could finalize the design. The first day went well. My friend, who was helping us with JoJo, joined us, and we were all busy. I was having a great time.

April 3, 11:58 AM AST. We starting working on FPE Together

April 9, 2024: The Profit Split Reality (Important)

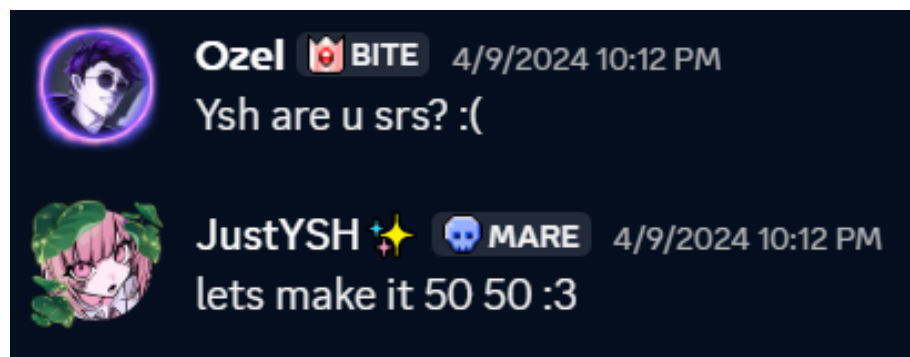

April 9, 10:10 PM AST. I asked him about the % and he told me that he want %50 Even though I did a lot of things and he was just playing around, I agreed only for his sake.

I asked Ozel about the percentages and how they would be. He told me to make it 50/50. I told him I'd done so many things. He said, "where's my profit ;(" and then, "Ysh Are you serious?" I felt like it was going to turn into a drama, so I agreed to make it 50/50.

I thought that Ozel could help us a lot with the project and help us promote the game, so I had no problem with that. On the contrary, I felt the percentage was fair at the time, so I divided my share and gave it to my friend, so now I only have 25 and Ozel has 50. until April 18

April 9, 10:12 PM AST

April 18, 2024: Ozel's confession to me (Very Important)

Ozel started to be strangely absent from work. I spoke to him and told him we'd canceled and didn't want to make comms for other people, so we wouldn't have to pay too much and start losing Robux (Ozel and I were responsible for hiring people, and we shared the costs). I suggested he reduce his percentage to 38%, but I only reduced it a little so I could use it later to hire someone who could help us. I needed an animator, even though my percentage was 20% at the time, because I divided it and gave it to other developers on the team. Ozel refused to take 38%; he wants the full 50% so bad. I was sad because he didn't understand or help us a little, and he was very attached to his percentage. So if I lowered my percentage any further, I wouldn't get anything, but Ozel stuck to his decision. and I can't do anything it's his choice

JustYSH ✨ 🧠 MARE 4/18/2024 4:23 PM

i can't do it
i have so many things to do rn

April 18, 4:21-4:22 PM AST. I've spent hours on the project, and he should at least reduce his percentage and understand the situation and the pressure we're under.

April 18, 4:22-4:23 PM AST. Ozel thought I was going to abandon him, and I said no, impossible, especially since we've worked on many projects, and it would be difficult for me to fire him, especially since I've never fired him from any of the projects I've done for him. And I'm just giving him 38 (presumably referring to a temporary measure) until he comes back, so he understands our situation.

April 18, 4:24 PM AST. Ozel rejected his 38% share and I told him I was actually waiting for him to do some things he was responsible for, like designing models.

In the middle of a discussion where I mentioned that I had worked a lot, etc., he told me that he had surgery in a month. My reaction was very shocked, I said to him, "Why you didn't told me that!" He replied, "personal reasons." I felt that even if it was something personal, you should have told me so I could understand that you couldn't help us. So, after we had determined the percentages and prepared our work and everything, I felt something, but I caught myself and thought maybe something had happened to him suddenly or maybe he didn't want to immerse his life in Discord like I did I started making excuses for him in my own mind.

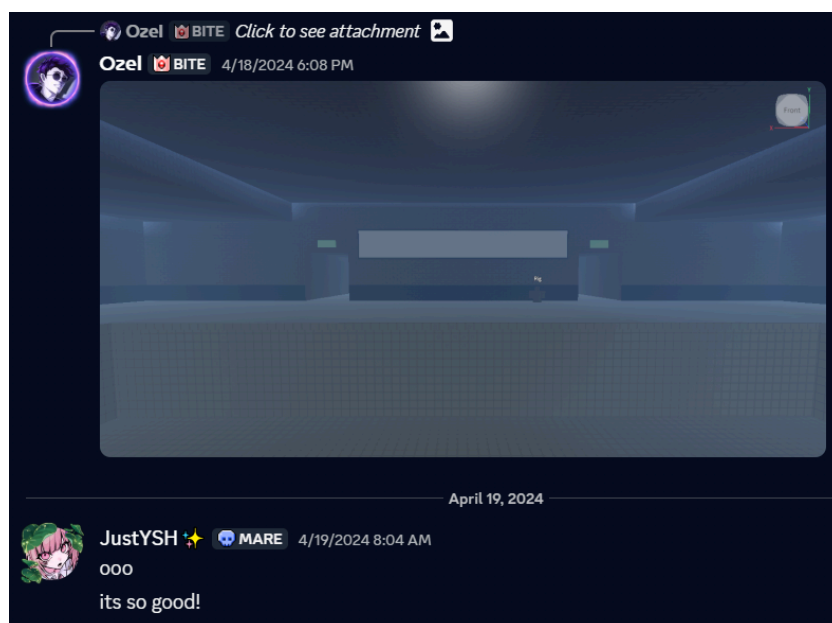

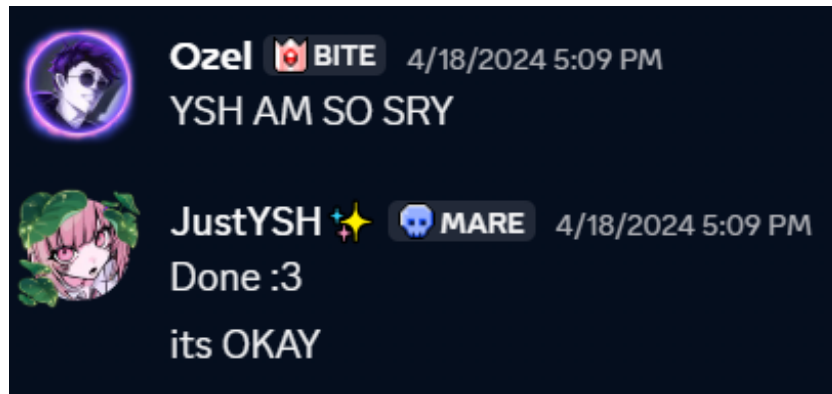

April 18, 4:30-4:33 PM AST. Ozel confessed to me that he has an operation in a month, and I had no idea about it, and I was shocked.

April 18, 4:33-4:34 PM AST. I started to worry about Ozel here and told him that he shouldn't keep this a secret between us and that he could tell me, but I kept quiet and understood the situation before speaking and respected his privacy.

Even before he told me about the surgery, I was very suspicious that he didn't want to work with us because he hadn't worked on the project in a while.

So, as soon as Ozel told me this, he started working on the pool room. I told him to stop, that I didn't want his help, that I wanted him to rest and leave the rest to us. But he finished the room. I won't lie, the room was huge, but I kept praising it because he did it while he wasn't fully recovered.

April 18, 5:09 PM AST. Ozel kept apologizing to me for not telling me, and I kept patting him on the back, telling him it was okay and that he did what he had to do.

April 18, 5:16 PM AST. I told Ozel that my friend and I could build this room and that he didn't have to.

April 19, 8:04 AM AST. The next day Ozel showed me the result I sat there praising Ozel's work, saying it was very good despite its large size. I really respected him for doing that, and I even praised Liam's work.

Regarding the percentages and dividing the work, I felt I was in a predicament because I couldn't hire people until the work was divided. This would only make things more stressful, especially since Ozel has the largest percentage and is in control. So, if I talked to Ozel and asked him to help us by reducing his percentage so I could hire more people... There are people who can help us, and it would make me look like I'm not respecting his work. At the same time, this might affect the morale of the two people working hardest on the project, which is my friend and me. But I accepted the situation and continued without forcing Ozel.

In the end, I allowed him to take 50%, and my share became 15%, even though I tried to explain to him that he wouldn't be able to help us for that long. I only wanted him to take 38% temporarily, but I didn't pressure him and closed the matter.

Regarding why I refused to let him hire people, I only refused to hire comms because I felt it would take too long, and they might not understand the style we wanted. I preferred hiring because I felt it was better since they would continue with us on the project, understand everything, and the game's style. As for paying the developers, my friend, Ozel, and I were responsible for paying the developers, especially me and my friend.

April 20, 2024: Ozel's return from break (Important)

At that time, Ozel was already working, but I didn't want him to work too much. I told him to do whatever he wanted, or even just add anything in the game whatever he wanted and leave, because I didn't want him to work while he was tired.

But after a few days, his condition improved, and he went back to normal and started working with us like before. At that time, the reason I spoke to Ozel in this slightly curt manner wasn't because I was upset and tired so tired; I had been speaking to him normally before, but the reason was actually tiredness and stressed because of the amount of pressure I was under from my studies and the game I was develop.

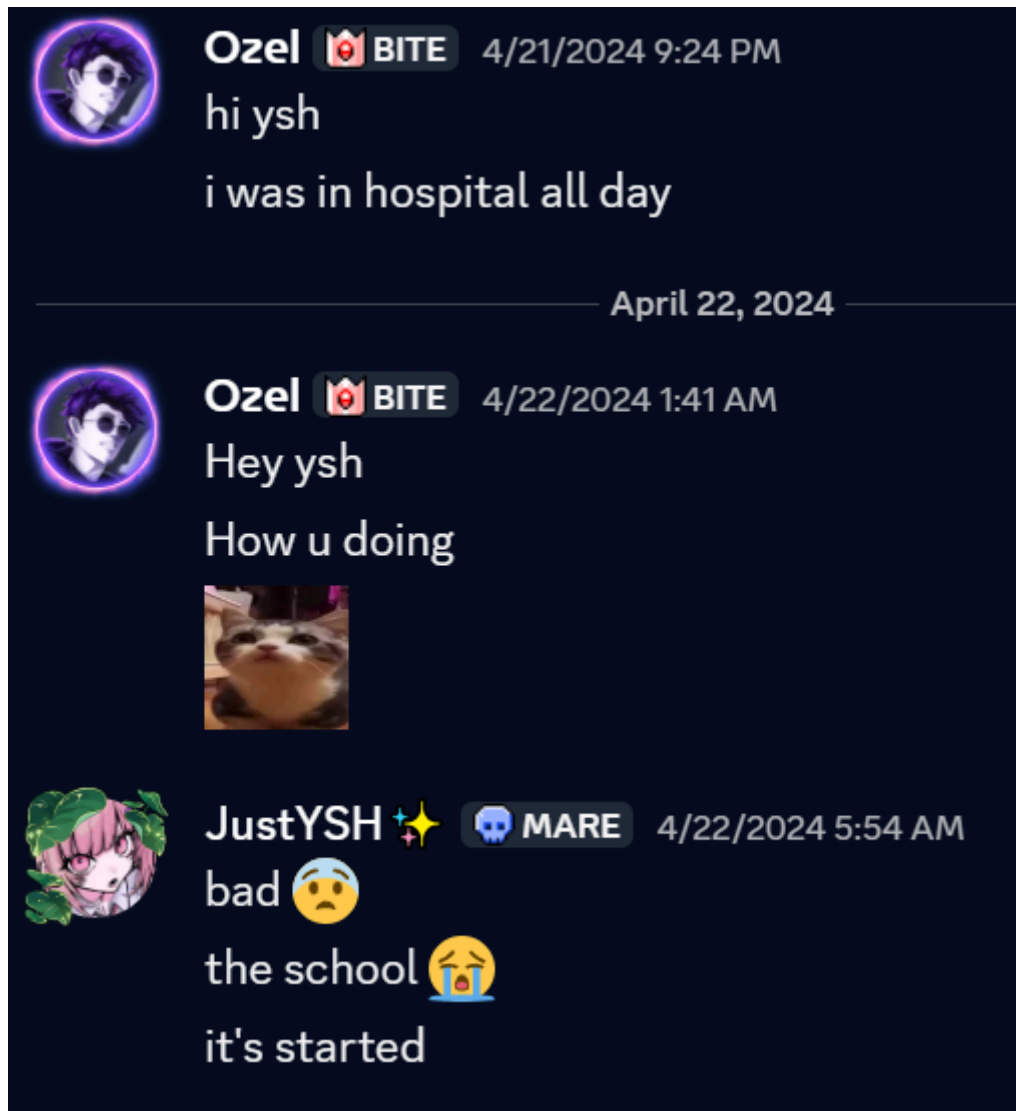

The whole thing was causing me insomnia and tiredness. especially since I was working beyond my capacity and for very long hours, between 16 - 18 hours every day

April 20, 4:59 PM AST. My tone with Ozel sounded curt because I was tired from work, and I was a little annoyed that he didn't understand this and that he asked for a large percentage even though he knew he couldn't help us much.

April 22, 2024: Patting His Back While Burning Out, from what he is doing (Important)

April 21-22, 9:24-5:54 PM AST

I decided to reduce my communication and take a break because I was having a breakdown while working. That's why I cut down on contact with Ozel. I tried to focus on my health and came back after more than a day. That's why I was being distant with Ozel. I didn't hate him; I hated the pressure I was under.

Ozel started returning to his hospital, so he had to stop working for a while to come back to us later. But all this time, I was surprised because Ozel was playing Roblox for hours and making cooperative and long videos. But I started to overcome my doubts, and we sat down to play our game and try it out.

April 26, 11:04 PM AST. I started to suspect Ozel because he was doing collaborations and videos, but I thought maybe he was doing them before the accident and that he couldn't help us now, but no, he was just playing around while I was thinking about these things.

April - May 26 - 2, 2024: The 50/50 Illusion: Five Weeks of Total Absence (Very Important)

All these days, Ozel was playing and making videos, even though he insisted on helping us, so I agreed. Since he wanted to help, I gave him a list of things he could do, but nothing happened, and the pressure continued.

I tried to explain to Ozel that if he wanted a 50/50 split, there had to be some fairness. I wouldn't take 70%; my percentage would never increase. I'd give it to one of my friends who could help us. So, if I reduced his percentage, it didn't mean I abandoned him or that I was exploiting him. I respect his wish. It's been a long time since he wanted 50%, but five weeks passed, and Ozel hadn't touched Roblox Studio in ages.

i can do that

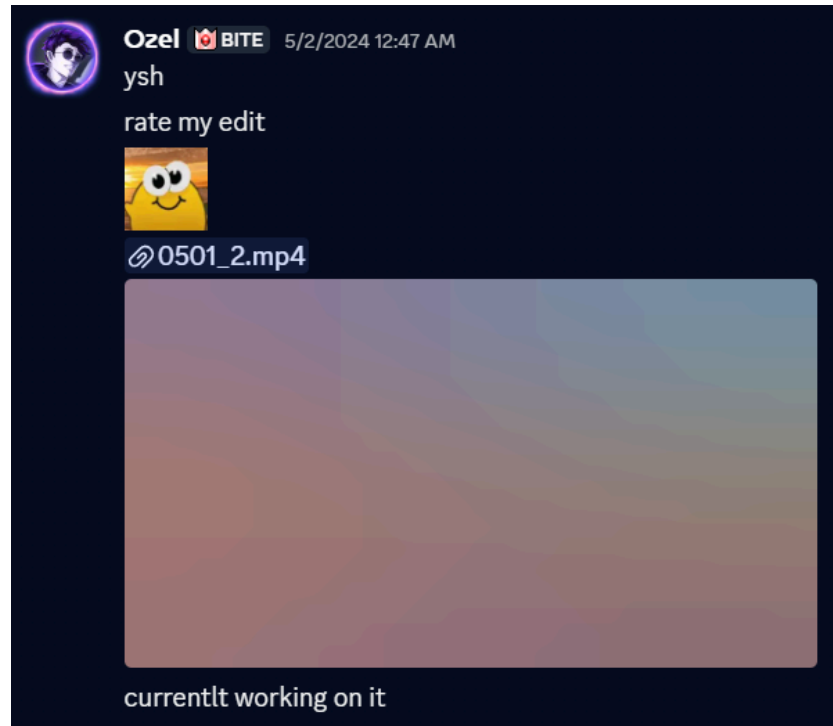

April 22, 6:38 PM AST. I gave ozel lists and things he could help us with, but he spent all his time playing instead of doing that.

He kept showing me on Roblox that he was only playing. I started to get a little annoyed because he understood my situation. He understood the pressure we were under. We're developers, responsible for an entire game, building scripts, art, UI, VFX, modeling, and even more. It was a nightmare for us, to the point where I broke down and couldn't continue.

The increase came on the 5th of May, day 3, 2024, when Ozel admitted that he couldn't help us and that it was best for him to be an Honor member, not a developer.

MAY 2, 12:47 PM AST. Ozel kept apologizing to me for not telling me, and I kept patting him on the back, telling him it was okay and that he did what he had to do.

May 3, 2024: The decision to dismiss Ozel as developer (Very Important)

After weeks of pressure and exhaustion, I finally decided to remove Ozel as a developer and keep him as an honorary member, reducing his percentage to 25%. His percentage was still higher than ours, so it wasn't just my fault. The message was written by my friend, and I didn't want it to be harsh or aggressive.

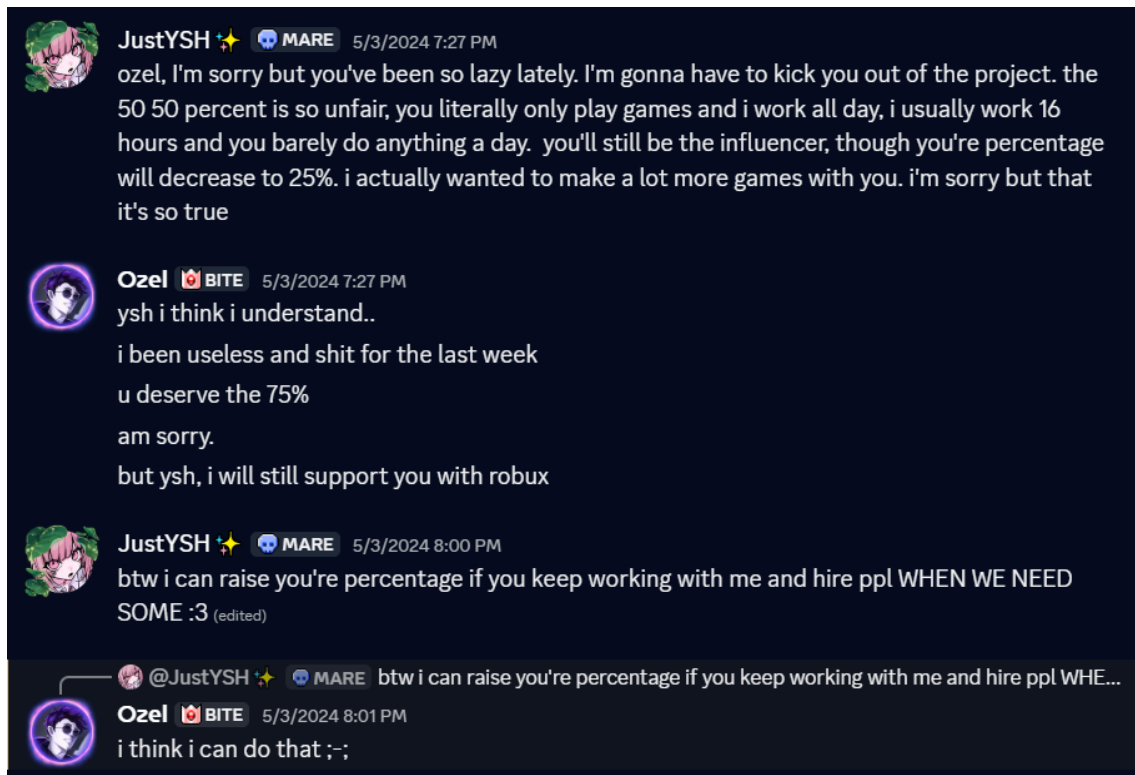

The agreement was that since Ozel couldn't help us with the game's development, the best option was to reduce his percentage. If we continued on this path, with us reducing our percentages while he took 50% and did nothing, it would be incredibly stressful for us. I still remember those difficult days. It got to the point where one of my friends cried and became depressed because of the long hours he was working.

We tried several times to explain to Ozel that reducing his percentage by even 10% would greatly benefit us, but he refused, as if he wasn't willing to cooperate or understand the situation.

FPE was one of the worst games I've worked on, not because of the idea itself, but because of the exhaustion.

After this message I told him I'd restore my percentage to what it was before if he could hire other people. I admitted I initially refused, but he was exhausted, so I'd accept any help. Ozel replied that he'd try.

MAY 3, 7:27-8:01 PM AST. Ozel kept apologizing to me for not telling me, and I kept patting him on the back, telling him it was okay and that he did what he had to do.

After that, we started talking, and I consulted him about the GamePasses and prices. It looked as if nothing had happened, and we continued as normal.

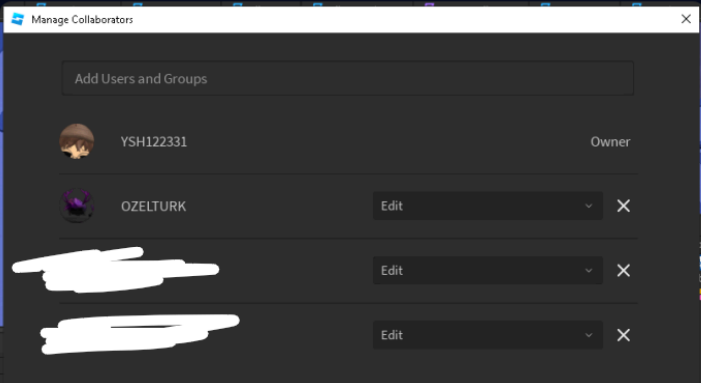

MAY 4, 1:48 PM AST. Ozel kept apologizing to me for not telling me, and I kept patting him on the back, telling him it was okay and that he did what he had to do.

MAY 15, 8:31 PM AST. Ozel was still Owner

May 15, 2024 (Not Important)

On May 15th, between 7:00 and 6:00, I joined a call on one of the random FPE servers and met someone who was streaming Blender and creating a Serial Designation N model from the Murder Drones series. I was amazed by the quality, but there were many people on the call. I decided to talk to him privately so we could chat. I'd never seen anyone using Blender on a call before, so I felt it was easier to communicate than to talk, even though my English wasn't great. I had a lot to say.

MAY 15, 713 AM AST. I start talking for the first time with ed

We started chatting, and I began showing him my FPE game with Ozel. He then showed me a game he was working on and told me he was helping a friend. After a few minutes, he told me that one of his friends had seen me streaming and had seen my game outside the call. It was just me and him on the call. I asked him, "How did he see it? We were the only ones on the call." He said he had put The mouse was on my stream and saw my game's logo when I was in the menu.

A simple explanation (Very Important)

It might seem strange that I'm going into such minute details, and you might say it has nothing to do with Ozel or that it's just unnecessary detail, but this is part of a specific storyline, and every detail here is important. It might even be the most important thing in the story that completely changed my friendship with Ozel.

I tried to remove topics that I felt were unnecessary or had excessive details, but I felt it might come across as if I were hiding something. And if I left them, it might come across as if I were tiring the reader out or lying because of my extra details, especially since I remember this situation exactly.

May 16, 2024: Hiring ED Into ozel project (FPE) (Important)

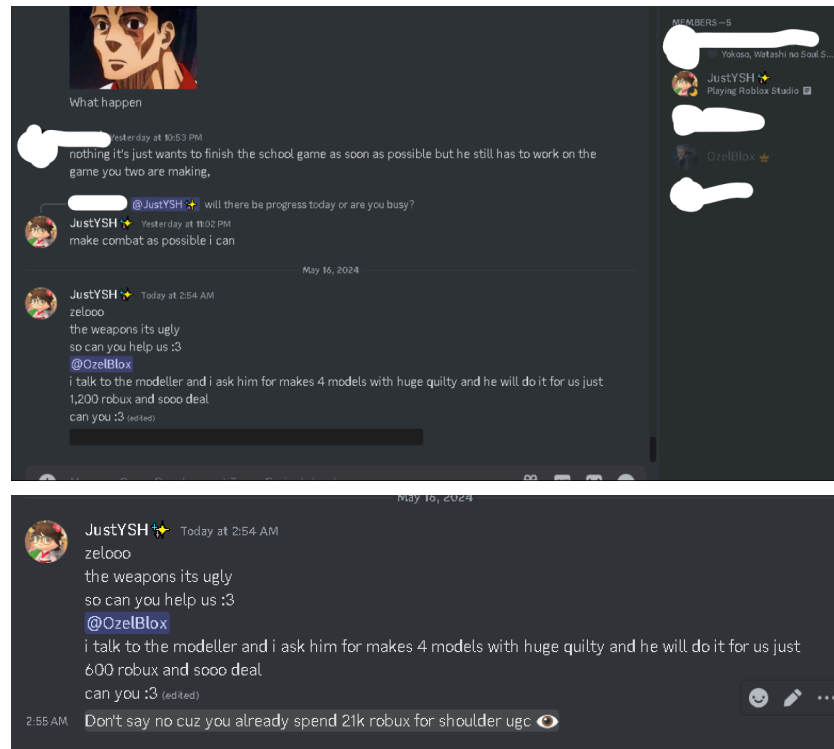

May 16, 12:36 AM AST. I DM Ed for the first time to tell him that I want to do some deal with him, but I started to get nervous

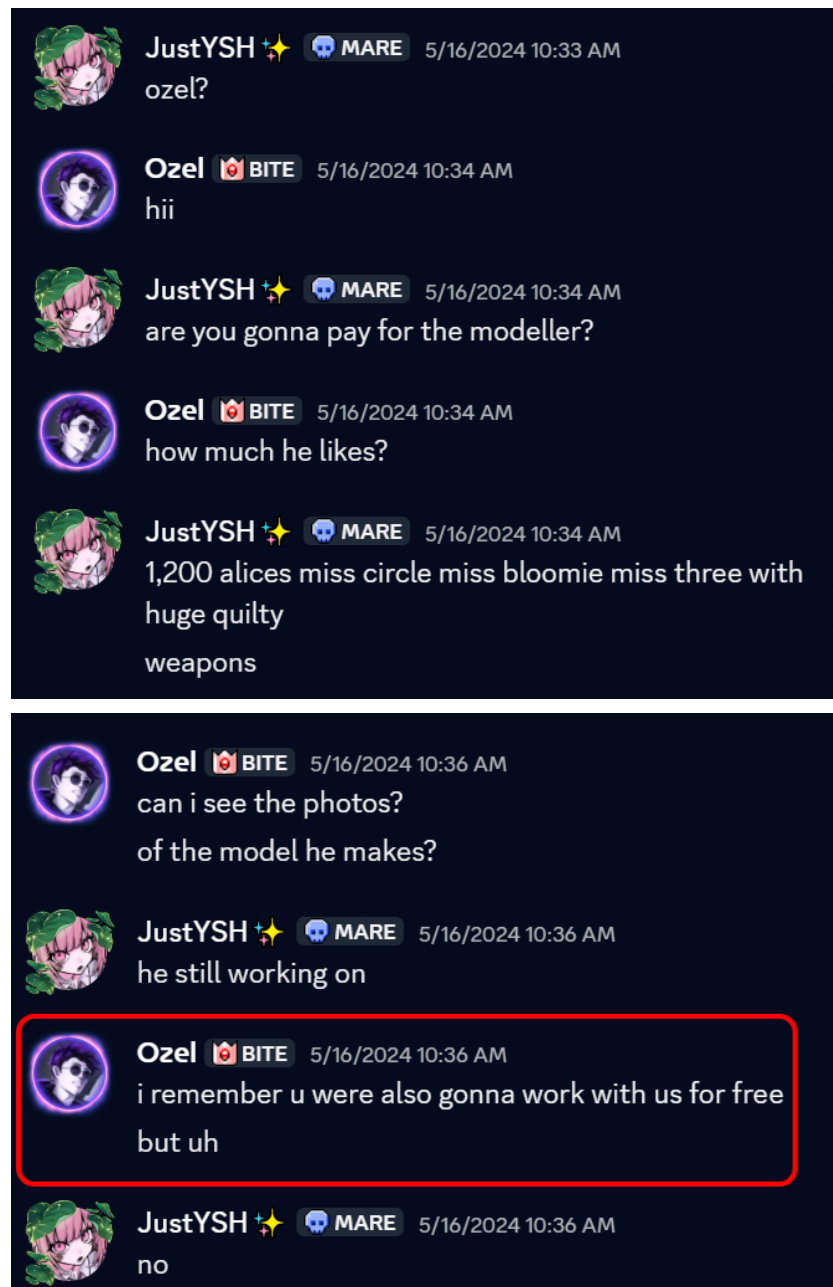

May 16, 1:56-2:47 AM AST. At midnight, 2 AM, I sent a message to ozel in a group chat saying I found a very good developer who could help us.

May 16, 2:51 AM AST. I asked Ed to raise his price because it was very low compared to the quality, especially since it was his first time doing a commission.

May 16, 2:52 AM AST. I agreed with him on a sum of 600 Robux

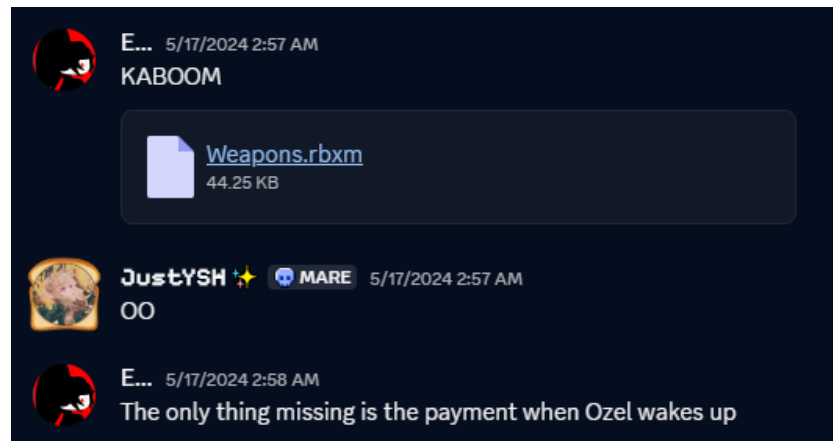

May 16, 2:54 AM AST. At midnight, 2 AM, I sent a message to ozel in a group chat saying I found a very good developer who could help us. (the weapons its ugly I'm not talking about the ED weapons models I was joking about a other thing with ozel. After the mention, I started talking about how I found a really good modler who could help us and that I agreed on a price with him. This was the first time I'd ever said "Ozel" that I found a really good modler.

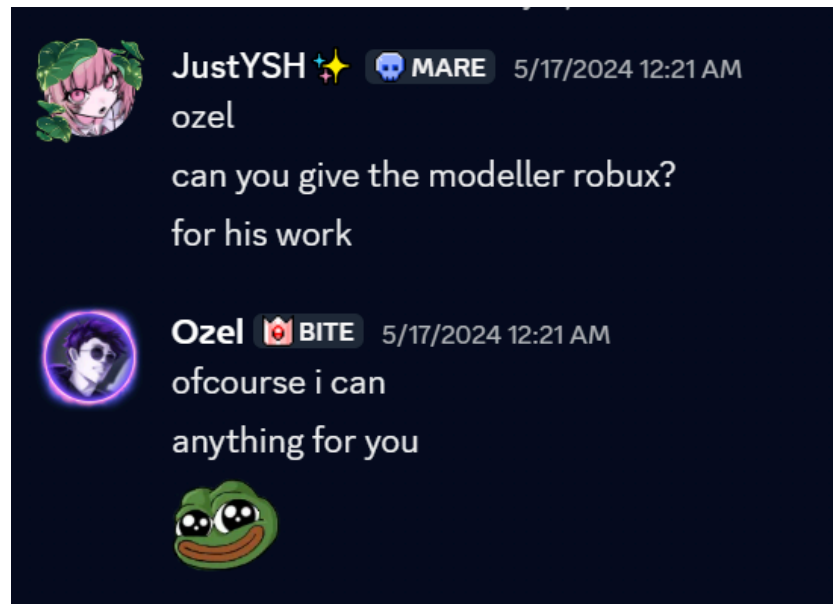

May 16, 10:33-10:36 AM AST. Ozel mentioned that he pays the modeler, but I raised the price because I felt he deserved it based on his work, especially since he doesn't know how to price things. Ozel replied, "i remember you were also gonna work with us for"

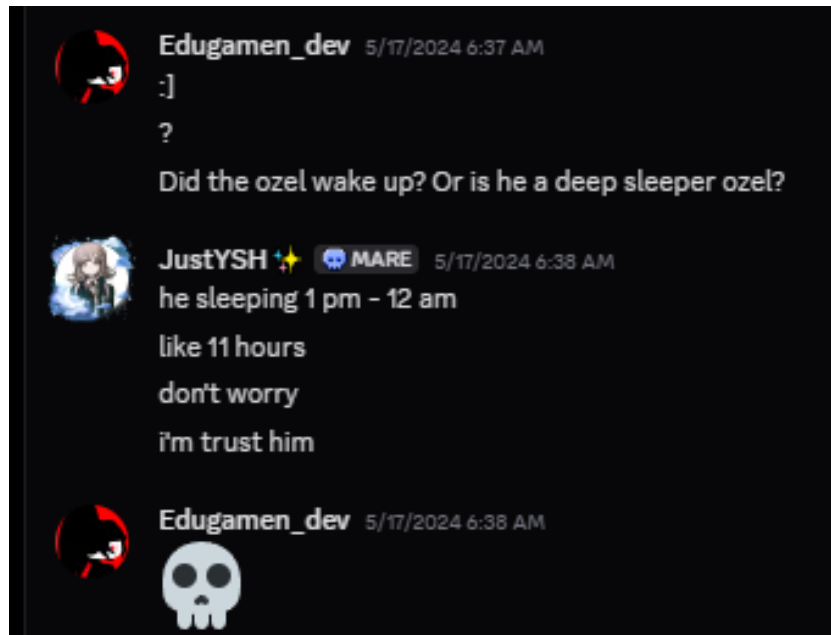

May 17, 2024 (Important)

May 17, 2:57 AM AST. The modeler finished his work and handed it over, but it was missing that ozel would pay him

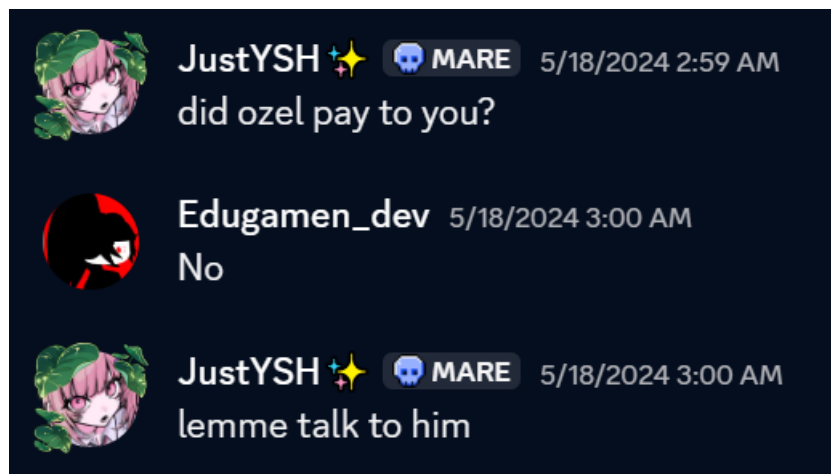

May 17, 12:21 AM AST. I asked ozel about the modeller payment and he told me that he will do

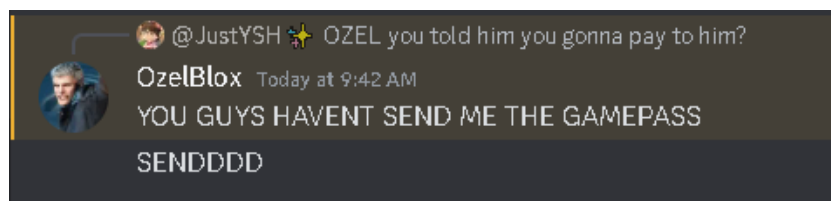

May 17, 6:37-6:38 AM AST. The modler called me back about his Robux issue and that Ozel was late.

May 18, 2024 : Ed start getting worry about payment (Important)

The next day I contacted Ed to see if he had received his money or not. He told me no. I decided to contact Ozel and tell him to pay the modler because the modler was starting to suspect that his work had been stolen.

May 18, 2:59-3:00 AM AST

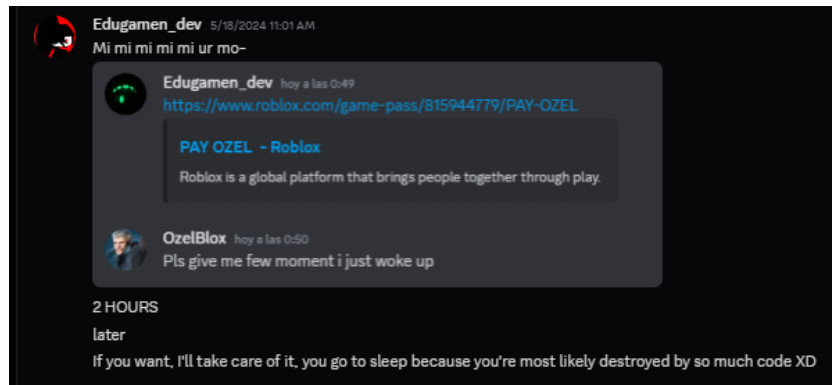

May 18, 9:42 AM AST. I didn't send the game passes because Ozel and the modeller were already in contact. I only reminded Ozel about the payment and never intended to act as a middleman

*****

At the end after few hours, I told the modeller to contact Ozel because I wasn't free to be a mediator and I had other work to do. I especially wanted Ozel to get to know the modeler better. After sending this, I went to sleep because I had a headache. I was responsible for all the problems that happened in the team, and I was responsible for everything, even if someone else made a mistake; I took responsibility for that mistake.

I never wanted to be the middleman. I wanted Ozel to handle finding developers and managing communication while I focused on being a developer. I didn't want all that pressure and responsibility on myself.

May 23, 2024: Handling the Commission and Private Chats (Very Important)

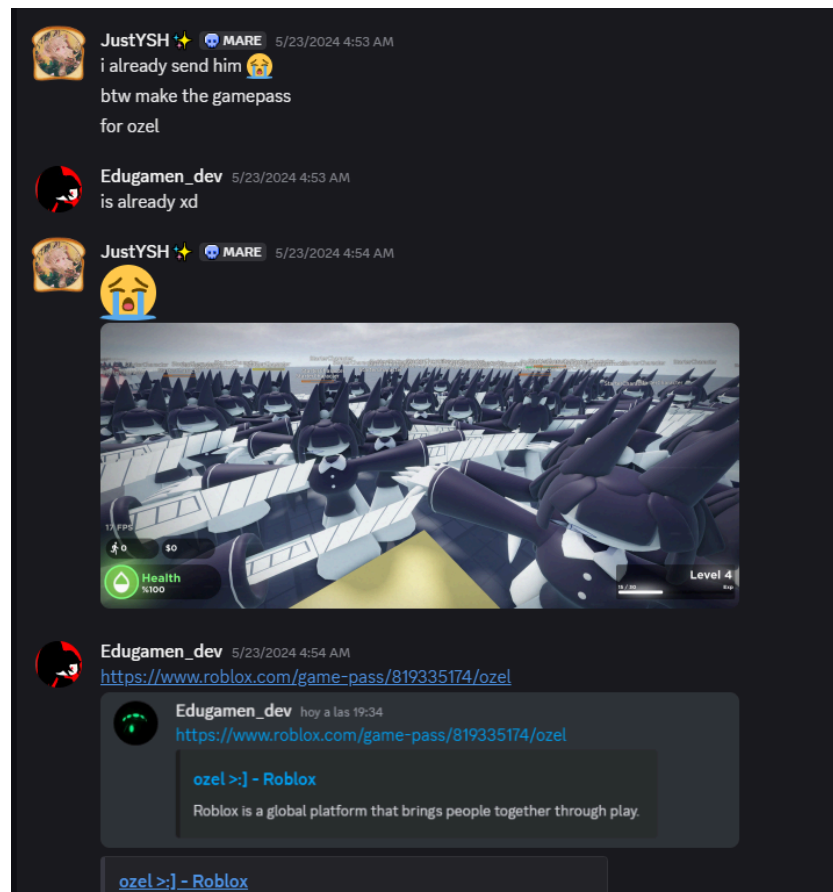

Ed finished his work and decided to hand it over to us. We used the group we had created before and tagged Ozel so he could see the model, but Ozel didn't reply, and the payment was delayed. Throughout this period, I refused to take the model from Ed and told him he wouldn't give it to me until I paid him, but the payment was very late.

May 23, 4:21 AM AST.

So why didn't I create these models myself, since I'm an expert in them? Because at that time, I thought Blender was impossible to learn, so I was passionate about it, but as I mentioned, I get distracted easily, and learning Blender is more difficult for me than for a normal person.

So, I told Ed to send the game pass privately to Ozel since they're already friends. Ed actually made the game pass and sent it privately to Ozel. Why didn't he send it in the group chat? I honestly don't know why, but I figured it would be better if they communicated privately.

May 23, 4:54 AM AST.

May 23, 2024: Covering Ozel's Financial Delays (Important)

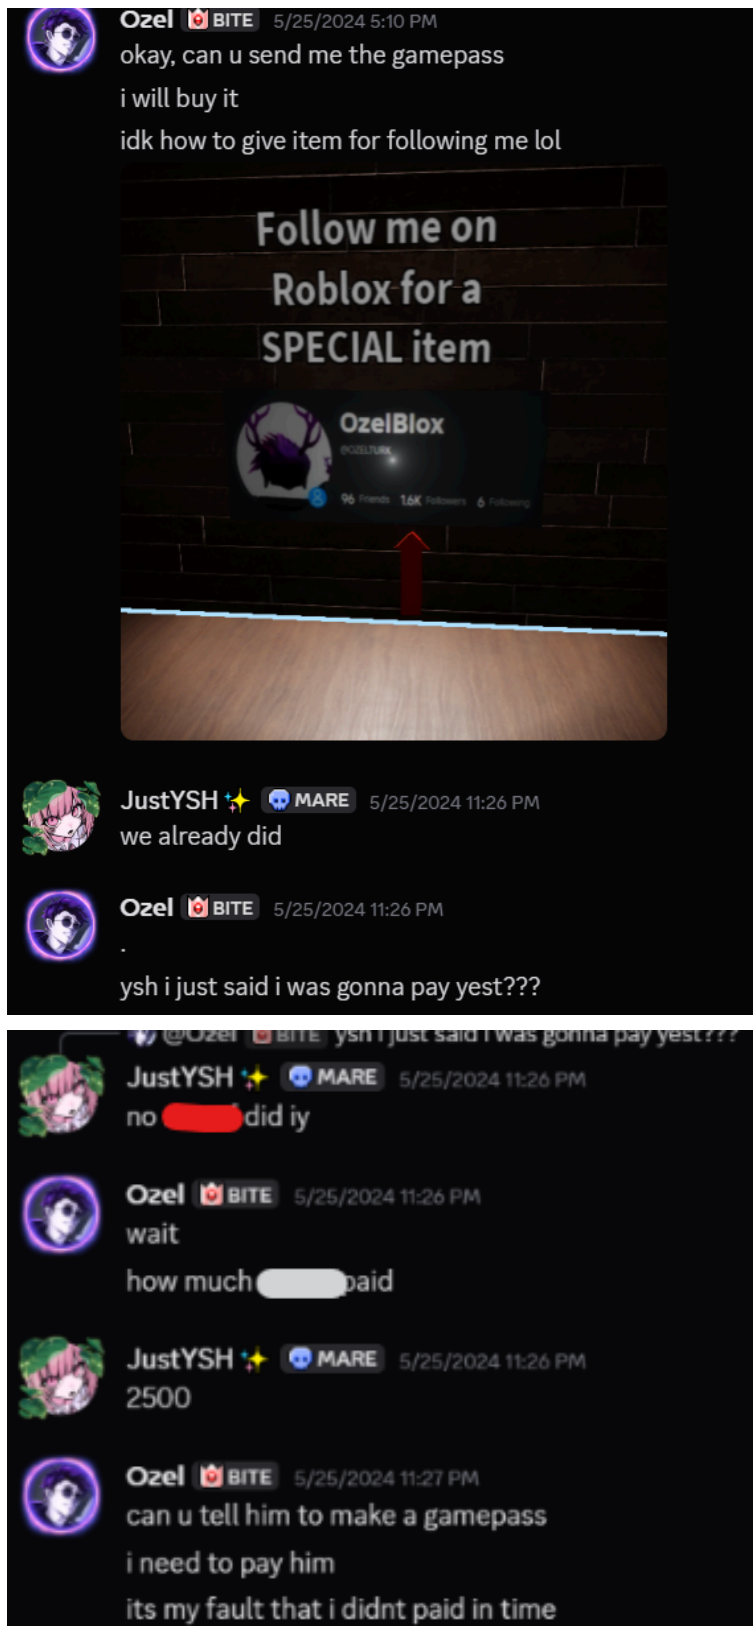

After some time, I asked Ed for the full model and decided to use it because the work had already stopped. At the time, I trusted that Ozel would pay since the last time he was only one day late.

Ozel ended up being more than 5 days late. Ed started getting frustrated about the payment and kept asking about it. I tried talking to Ozel and asking when he was going to pay, but days passed and nothing happened.

Eventually, my friend and I paid for it ourselves. We didn't want to keep making Ed wait, especially since this was the first commission he had done for us.

I was pretty upset about the situation. Not because of the money, but because Ozel didn't tell us there was going to be a delay. If Ozel had told us he needed more time, it would have been a lot easier to deal with. Instead, my friend and I were left trying to explain why the payment still hadn't been made.

On the 25th, Ozel messaged me asking about Ed and said he was ready to pay. I told him that my friend and I had already paid for it ourselves, so there was no need anymore. He seemed surprised and said he was planning to pay before, but by then the situation had already gone on for too long. I didn't want Ed getting the wrong impression of us, especially since he barely knew Ozel and had only recently started working with us.

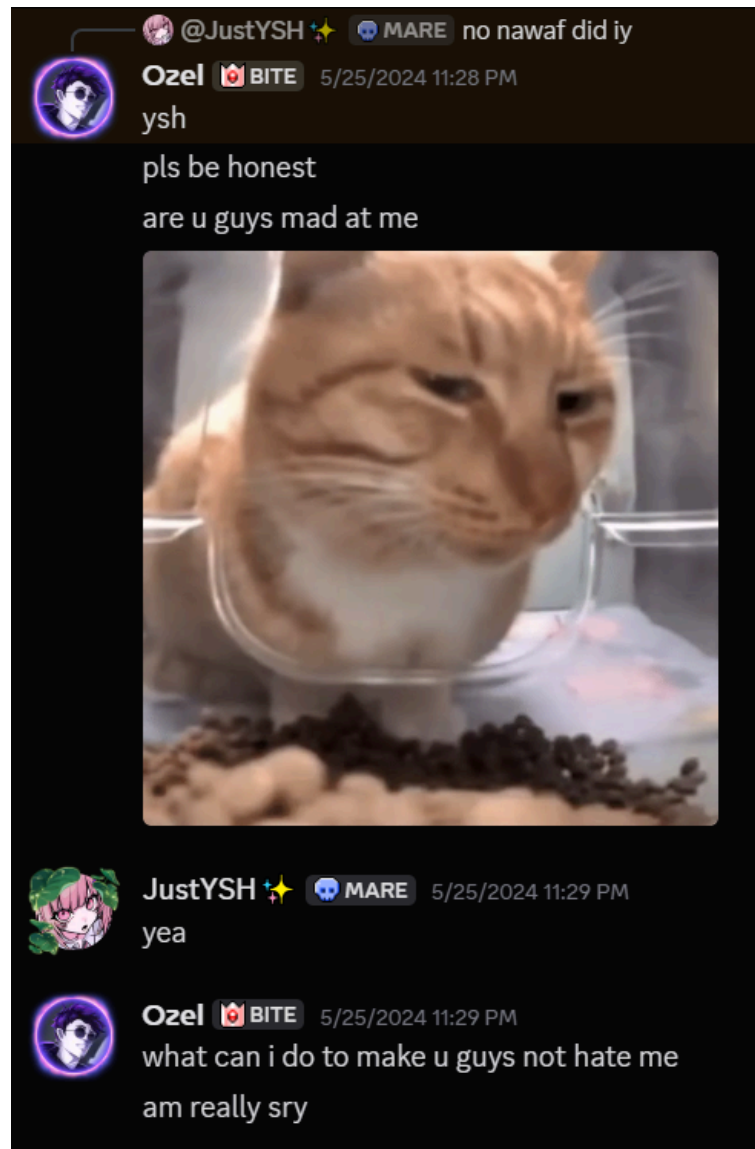

July 15, 2:23 PM AST.

I was upset with Ozel because he didn't tell me he couldn't pay on time. This caused me to bear the responsibility for problems between the owner and the developer, and it also led to the developer I considered ideal for the project leaving and losing my trust. I didn't want things to turn out like this; I just wanted us all to enjoy ourselves. But I chose not to bring it up again.

Ozel noticed I was changing the subject frequently, as if I didn't want to hint that I was upset. He asked me, "Do you hate me?" I replied yes, but it wasn't hateful hatred, just mild disappointment.

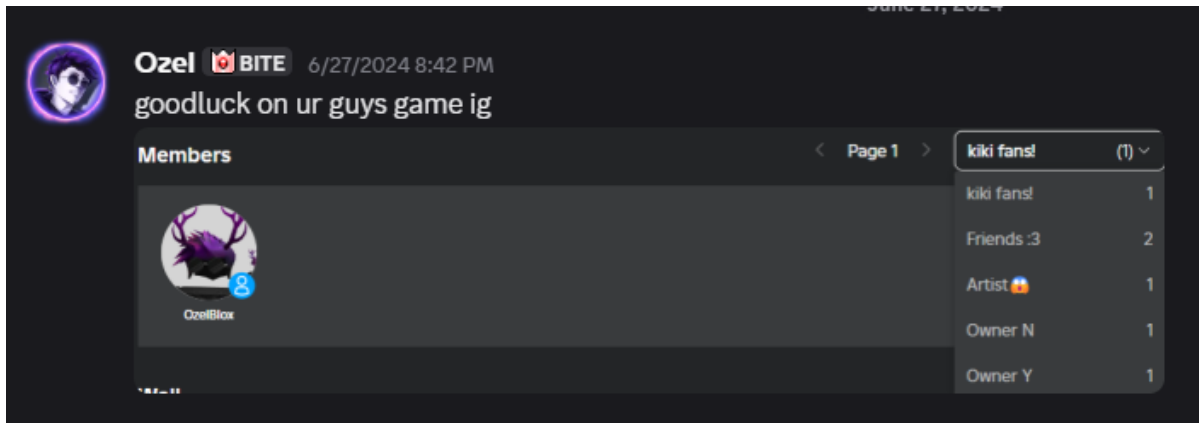

Clarification: Ozel's dismissal had nothing to do with my being upset, and you'll understand why I chose to leave the project later.

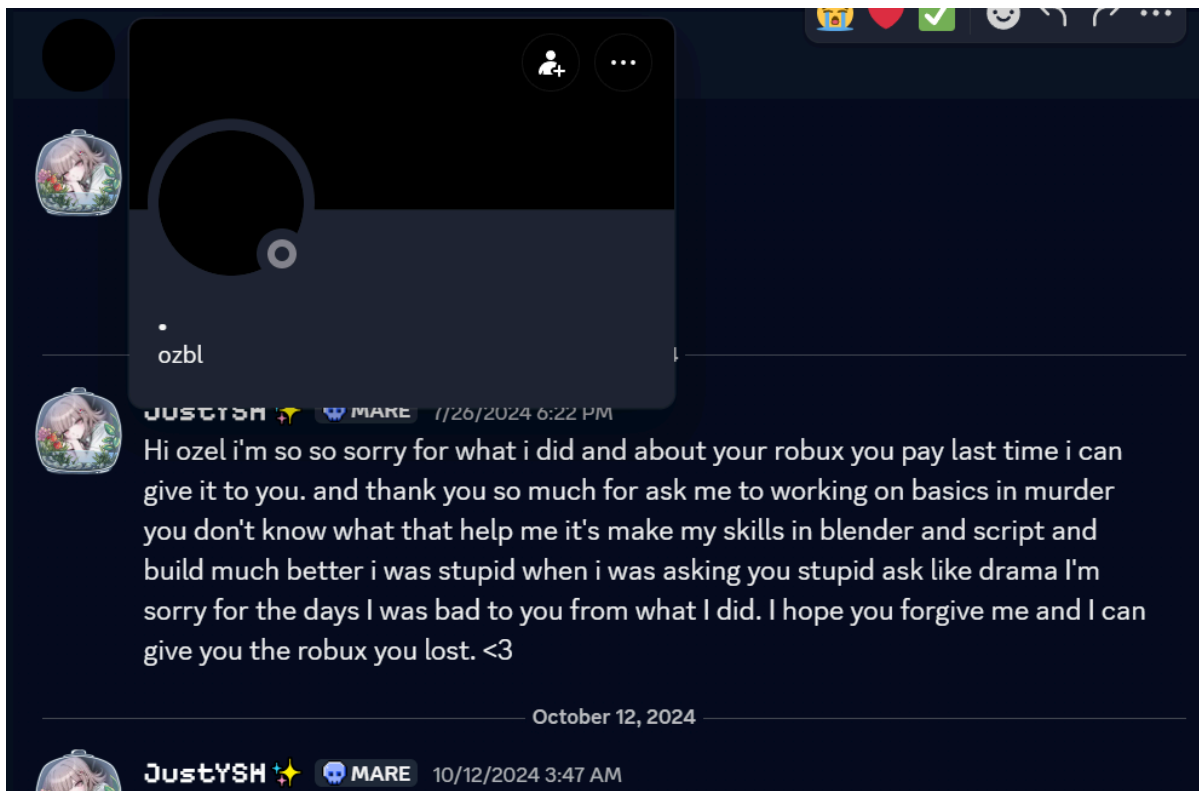

July 15, 2:23 PM AST.

June 27, 2024: dismissal and stressing (Very Important)

I've had enough of what I'm doing, and I wanted to work on my friends' project. I knew Ozel would strongly refuse, so I decided to fire him. It was difficult, especially when I tried to fire him the first time. I decided to fire him as a developer, but in the end, I brought him back because I felt sorry for him.

I knew he might be tired and unable to help us. When I finally fired him, I forced myself to try and collect the money he'd spent on the project and return it to him. I saw him playing games, working on videos, and joking around with his friends, but he wasn't helping us. At least he was reducing his share, which caused problems in our team. He was very stubborn in his decisions. If I told him I just wanted to switch to another group, he might refuse, and strongly so. He already refused strongly regarding his share, so imagine how he'd react to me leaving the project, especially since I'm the backbone of the game and the main person involved. If I continue with the project, I'll only get more tired. It's enough that I've already started. I was actually tired, and I was young at that time.

June 29, 2024: I took responsibility for ED actions (Important)

On the 29th, after I had already removed Ozel from the game, the modeler still disliked him.

A few months before I removed Ozel, Ozel had given me permissions in his game before so I could join and have fun whenever I wanted. At one point, I gave Ed Btools so we could build a house together above the map.

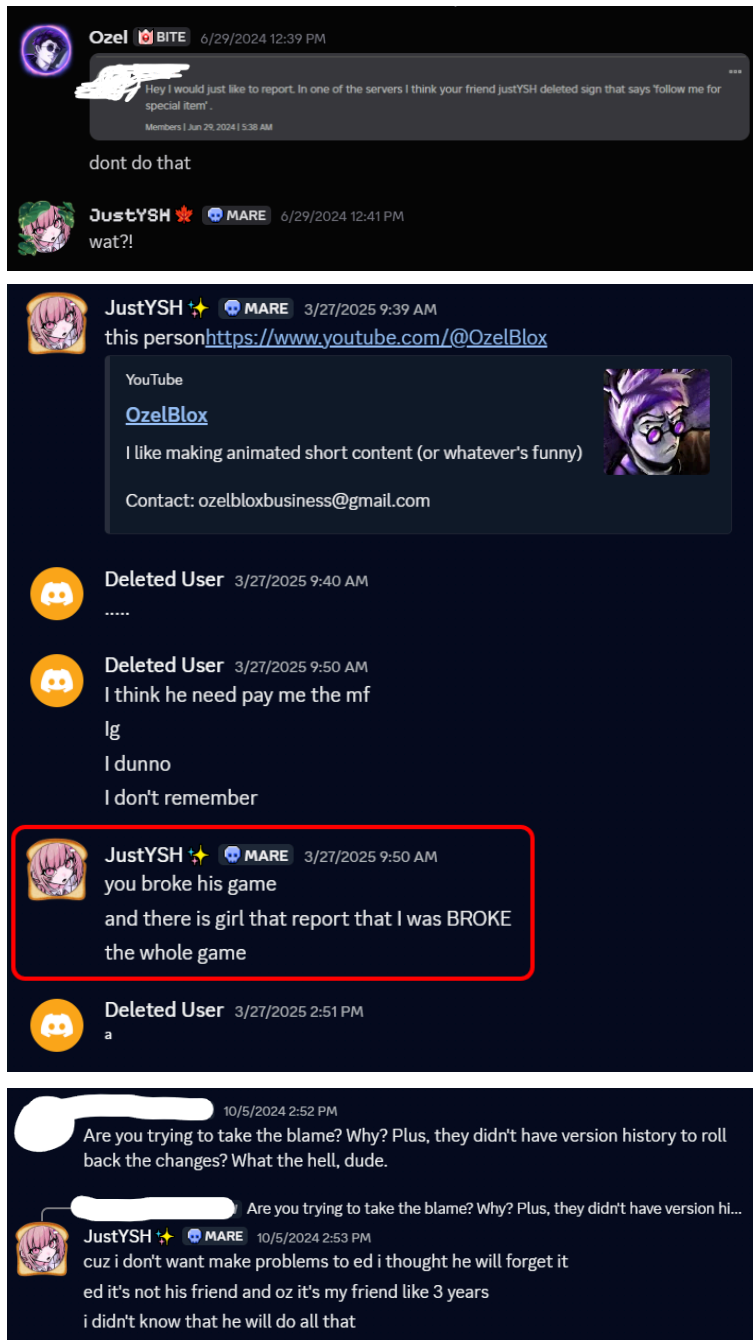

Instead, Ed started destroying parts of the map. At first, I thought he was just messing around and would stop after a minute or two, but he eventually left the game and the map was left damaged and scattered everywhere. Because of that, I had to spend my time fixing everything he had broken.

While I was repairing the damage, a girl in the server saw me holding BTools and reported in the Roblox group that I was the one who had destroyed the map.

Shortly afterwards, Ozel messaged me saying, "dont do that" I did not want to tell him that the modeler had done it because, at the end of the day, I was the one who had given him BTools in the first place. Whether it was intentional or not, the responsibility was mine. It was never my intention for Ed to damage the map.

One question that came up later was why I did not simply use commands to restore everything. The reason is that I did not have access to the command that could fully revert the map. There had been previous occasions where I accidentally broke something and had to ask Ozel to use that command because it was only available to the owner.

Neither me nor Ozel were very familiar with the command system at the time, so we never changed the permissions to allow admins to use it. As a result, I had no way to instantly restore the map and had to fix the damage manually.

July 15, 2:23 PM AST. Ozel tells me to stop, and I'm start getting worry with the issue, especially since I'm the one who gave the ed the btools. I didn't want to tell Ozel that ED did it so that there wouldn't be any problems between them.

March 27, 9:50 AM AST. I told Ed for the first time that a girl had reported to ozel for vandalizing the map while I was trying to fix it, and I took responsibility for his actions.

July 4, 2024: Leaving the project to join with my friends project (Very Important)

In June 2024, after the decision to let Ozel go, I finally decided I could join Papercut and leave the project. I talked to my friend about it. I was sad for Ozel, but he didn't want us to leave. He wanted us to work all the time without offering any real help. So, the decision to leave the project was to protect our mental health, especially since we were starting to reach a point of exhaustion because of it.

I know it was a difficult decision, and I had to choose between my mental health and Ozel, but I chose not to break down any further. Yes, there were developers with us, but not all of them worked with us extensively; most of them were from Papercut. I apologize if I made any mistakes or caused problems for anyone because of this decision. The decision was putting a lot of pressure on me, and I apologize to my best friend for not being able to continue the project with him. I was carrying too much work, far beyond my capacity.

At the end, I chose to go with my old friends and leave ozel project, but of course, before I left, I gave all the developers their money and thanked them for their work.

July 15, 2:23 PM AST. I gave all the developers who helped us their Robux

Chapter 2 : injustice, red flags

This page contains posts where I was subjected to mistreatment and insults. If you don't like it, you can leave this page if you feel annoyed by the repeated insults. ### October 4, 2024 : Attempt to contact (Important)

I tried contacting Ozel's friends because he wasn't answering me. I told them I didn't want things to escalate like this, that my only intention was to remove him from the project and give him his work money, and that I never meant for it to get this bad.

May 23, 4:54 AM AST. The same way Ozel's girlfriend ended up; I begged Ozel and gave him Robux so he would forgive me. About the tool I was talking about ed when he broke ozel game

Ozel's friend tried to calm me down, saying he'd look into the situation and talk to Ozel to see what was going on. I understood, but I was nervous. I was blaming myself; if I hadn't fired him, things wouldn't have gotten this bad. I knew I was helpless; I didn't want to go crazy working for hours. I was anxious the whole time I waited until Ozel's friend answered.

He told me he'd spoken to Ozel, and Ozel said he didn't want to be my friend anymore. He said he saw I'd chosen my path by choosing the model instead of him, and that he felt exploited instead of helped. I won't lie, I was furious. I asked, "How could this happen?" How could I have taken advantage of him when I sacrificed my time, effort, and everything for him? I was angry and upset that things had come to this. I didn't want to lose Ozel; he understands me and is similar to me in my personal life. So when he told me his problems, I understood, and I even told him some of my problems.

May 23, 4:54 AM AST. Ozel close friend telling me that ozel dosen't wish to be friends anymore

October 12, 2025 : Confrontation, Ended friendship (Very Important)

After hearing this, I went to Ozel DMs after 7 days. I couldn't hold my self even more and started attacking him. "Why would you do this? Why would you choose to end our friendship for this stupid reason, after I gave you everything you wanted and put all my effort into it? etc"

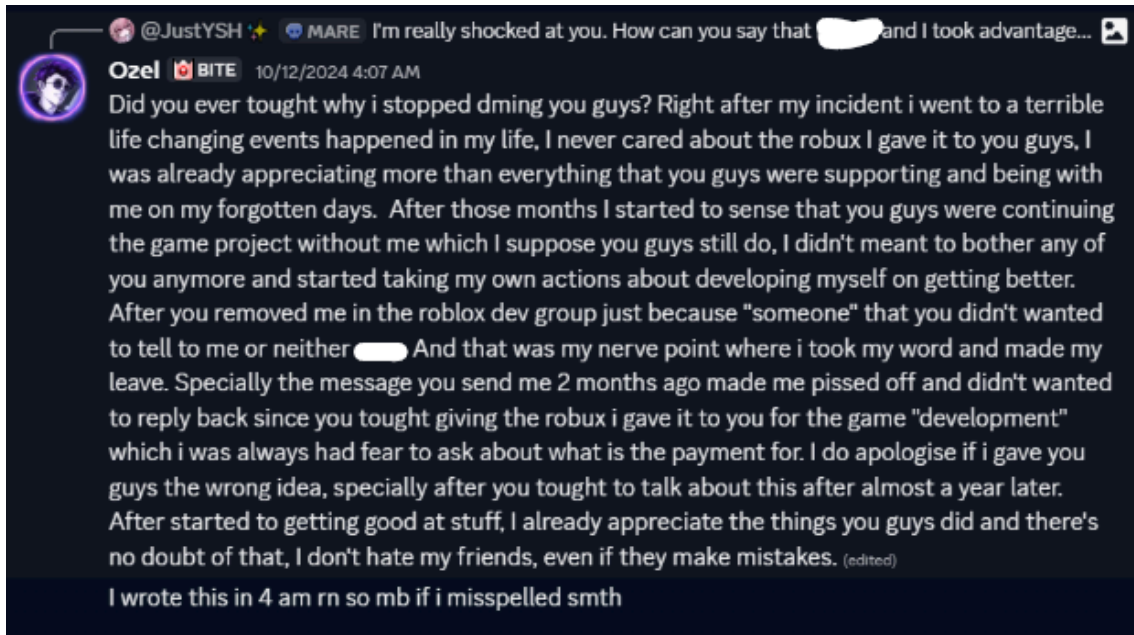

[THIS MESSAGE WAS DELETED]

May 23, 4:54 AM AST. I exploded at Ozel's private message asking why he was doing this after we had done everything he wanted.

The red thing is something. It's about the Ozel family issue. I had to hide it because I don't want to reveal his family secrets, and the white messages are one of my friend's names

Ozel tried to explain that he ignored my message because he was upset, even though I tried my best to make it polite and clear.

I wasn't reassured, so he said something completely different to his friend. He said he felt exploited instead of helped, but now he said he appreciates everything we did for him. I still couldn't get over it, and I was so upset inside, but I tried to be nice to him and explain that I never meant to bother him, I just contacted him to resolve my issue with him, and I don't mean anything.

I had to hide it because I don't want to reveal his family secrets, and the white messages are one of my friends' names*

I was really upset about it, especially since my birthday was so close. I didn't want to ruin everything, but as Ozel said behind my back, he wanted to end our friendship, so I decided to cut him off as he wanted, so the relationship wouldn't become toxic. He himself didn't want to continue our friendship and said it was something he kept to himself, but he definitely didn't want to say it in front of me so it wouldn't make things even more hurtful. but I had to accept it and do what he wants

May 23, 4:54 AM AST. I told him that, as he wants, I'm gonna end our friendship as he wants

March 28, 2025 : Hatred and persecution (Very Important)

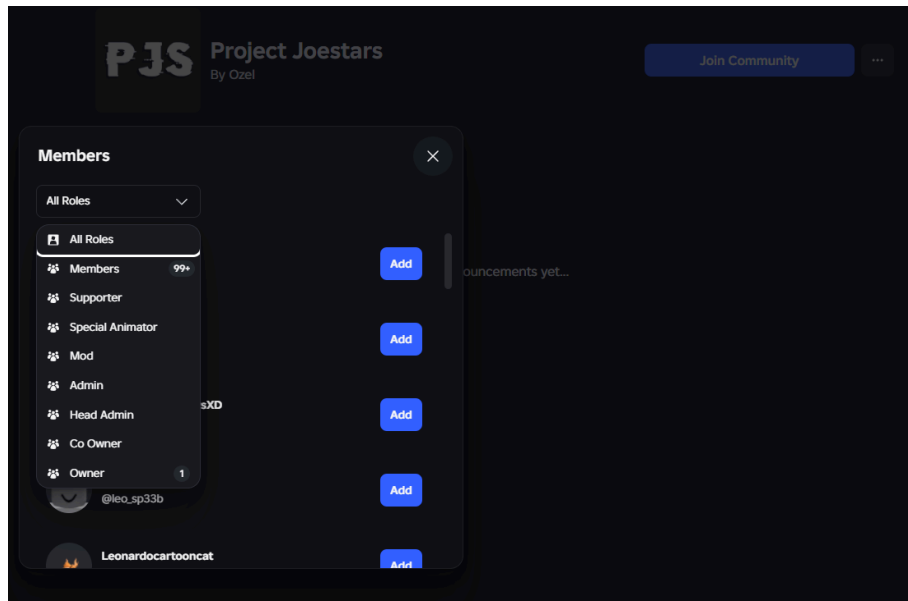

Around that time, Ozel started bothering me by sending me pictures, as if it were out of spite or that he was planning something against me in the future. He started kicking me out from groups that he has ownership, and removing me from all the games I'd worked on for years, as if it were revenge. I felt anxious about this, especially since I hadn't actually planned to cut ties with Ozel

Yes, I did say that I ended my friendship with Ozel. At first, it seemed like it was the end of our friendship, but as the days passed, I began to feel that I could explain to Ozel that things weren't as he thought and that it was all a misunderstanding.

I was just waiting for things to calm down so I could resolve my issues with him. But after seeing Ozel start harassing me in front of my friends and other developers we worked with, I decided to contact Ozel.

March 28, 5:57 AM AST. Ozel started bothering me by sending me strange and random things in old groups.

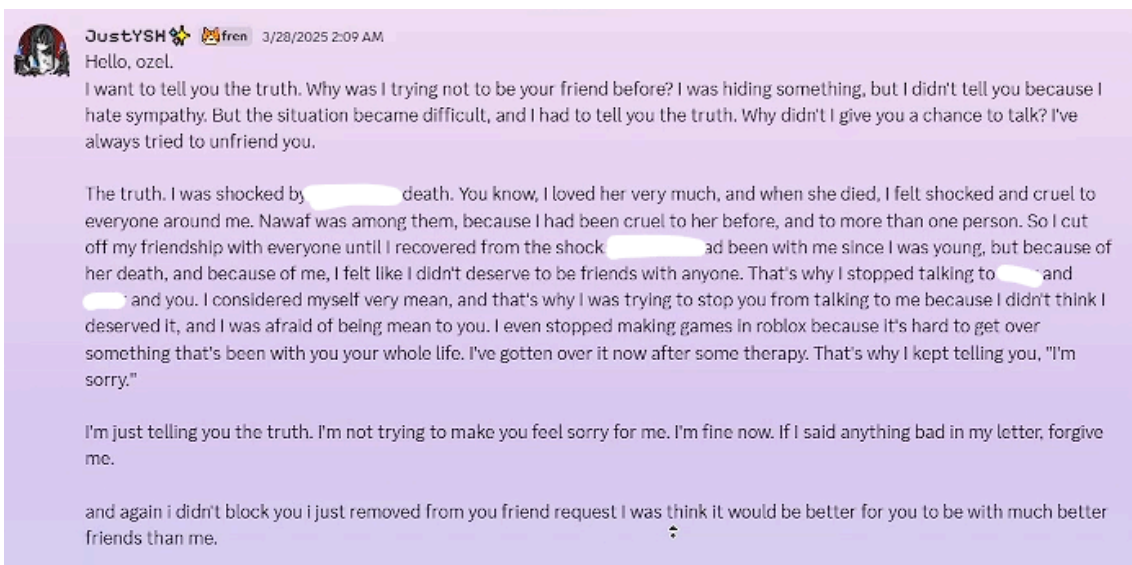

July 12, 2024, 8:30 PM AST. he started kicking me out of all the games he was working on before

He even kicked me out of the JoJo game that I'd worked on for two years of my life.

Important clarification:

I don't like to tie my personal life on Discord at all, especially my personal problems. One of the reasons I distanced myself from Ozel a bit was because I needed some solitude and peace.

So, if I feel like someone is interrogating me, blaming me, and talking badly about me behind my back, I try to make the lie seem more like the truth. I didn't want to ignore this aspect and try to portray myself as an angel, but that would be wrong. However, I felt that I wasn't I want to find an excuse in my own life, because I want to take responsibility for everything I did myself and I don't want to bring anything up from the outside.

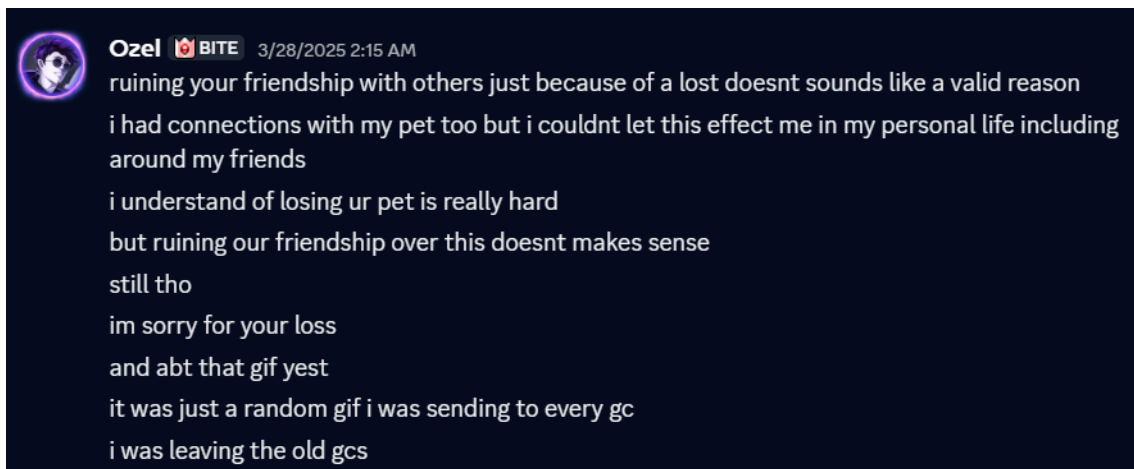

[THIS MESSAGE WAS DELETED]

March 28, 2:09 AM AST.

I contacted Ozel and told him that it was over. I explained that the reason I disappeared for a while was because I was nervous and didn't want him to see me looking broken and pleading. But if I didn't contact him, the problem might get worse, and I wanted him to understand that I wasn't there to make him hate me even more, that it was over.

Ozel replied, "ruining your friendship with others just because of a lost dosen't sounds like a valid reason," and agreed that we had resolved the issue and started communicating again. But what I didn't want happened. Ozel actually talked behind my back the whole time I was with him and spoke badly about me to my friend.

March 28, 2:15 AM AST.

My friend came and sent me a picture of Ozel talking negatively about me and blaming me for something he'd been asking me for a long time. His tone was like he didn't want to see my face and that he'd been forcing this relationship for a long time, like he'd been waiting for the opportunity to get it. The problems... this was the first problem that happened between Ozel and me in all the years of our friendship, because I'd never refused him anything.

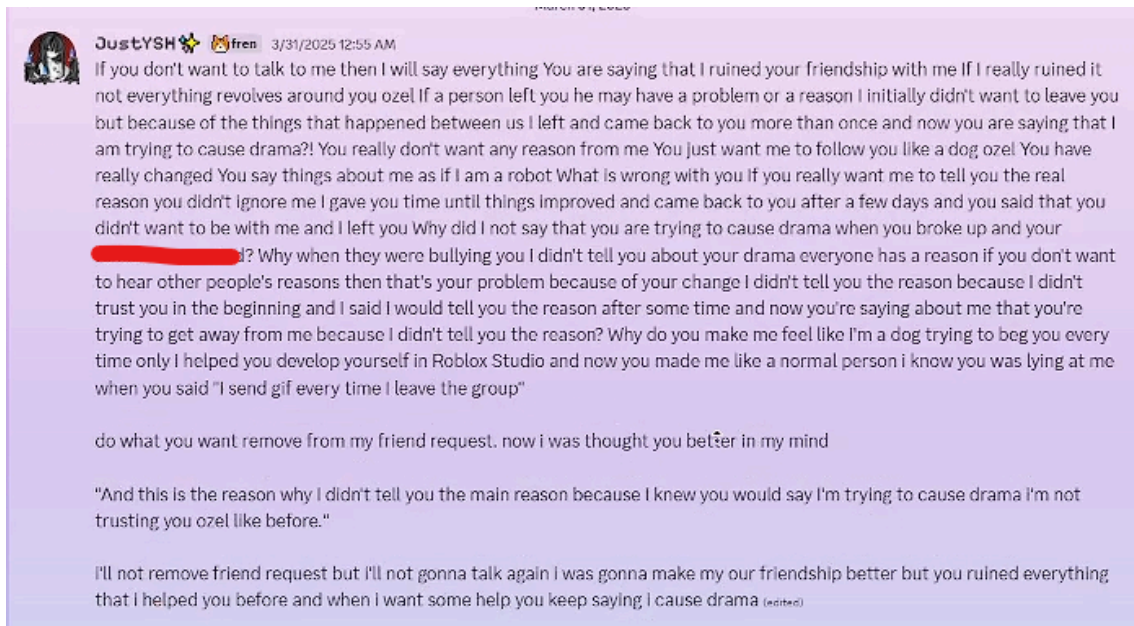

March 30, 2025 : (Important)

March 30, 5:43 PM AST.

I was so tired of everything. I didn't want any problems; I just wanted him to understand, to understand what I was trying to get across. But he didn't understand and he wasn't cooperative with me. He was making things worse and worse, and he was insulting me more and more. I felt like a dog being chased by him, and I felt like he didn't want to see my face. Even though he said in his document that he tried to contact me, he didn't. He was holding a grudge against me, and I was powerless to do anything about it, so he was looking for anything to blame me for.

March 31, 2025 : had enough, Mocking my English (Very Important)

[THIS MESSAGE WAS DELETED]

March 31, 12:55 AM AST.

Instead of trying to understand my message and realize I was trying my best to explain my intentions, Ozel simply told me, "At least fix your English, for God's sake!"

Just let you know, I don't like anyone talking about my English, especially since it's a major obstacle for me in communicating, and it's not something I can control because of my learning difficulties. So when someone I've helped in every way I can chooses to blame, and mock me, it's definitely hurtful, especially since the person making fun of this knows they're talking about something very sensitive for me.

They only chose to do this because they wanted to make things worse and belittle me. I was angry at the time, but I controlled my anger and responded with a question mark, as if to say, "Why are you making fun of something I complained to you about before and was bullied for?" I used to complain to Ozel about my English, and he told me before that he could improve it with me, but now he's taken everything as a joke and doesn't care at all, and this wasn't the first time he's done something like this.

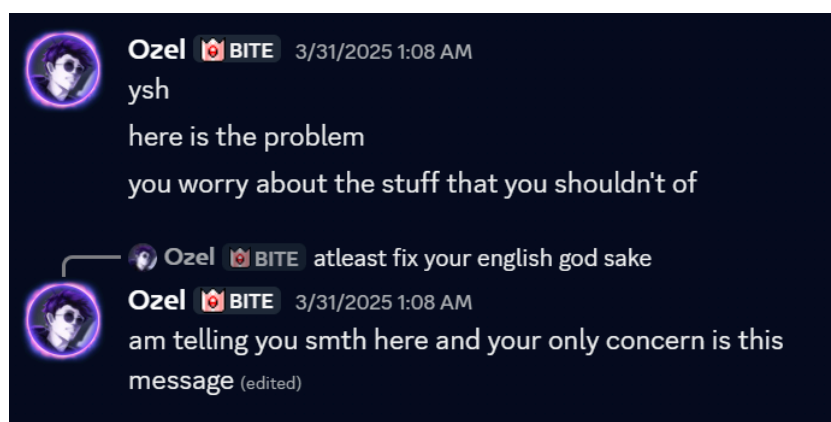

March 31, 1:06 AM AST.

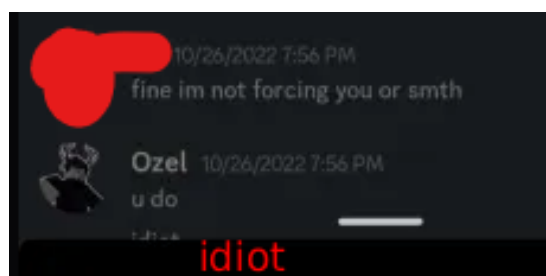

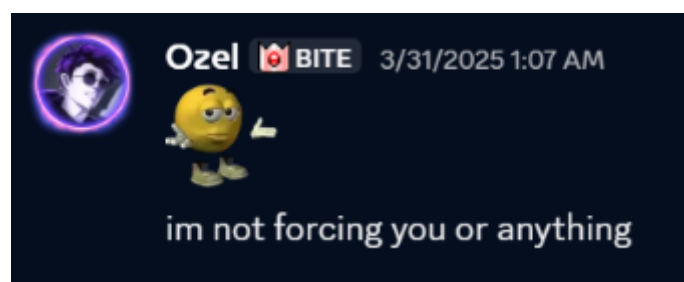

He was saying that he was just trying to show my friend that he didn't want to talk about the subject any further, even though he was talking about me in front of my friend and behind my back.

He actually told me before that he sends GIFs every time he joins a group, and now he's linking GIFs because of my arrival, and he doesn't even appreciate my attempts.

March 31, 1:07-1:08 AM AST. Ozel is mocking something sensitive about me, which is my English.

March 31, 1:07-1:08 AM AST. Even his conversation with the other victims was in the same manner.

April 2, 2025 : Mockery, Manipulation (Very Important)

I tried to explain to Ozel that he wasn't understanding me and that he was just trying to get rid of me. I tried to explain that we were both at fault and that everyone had to solve their own problems. I was a fool; I was begging him with all my heart.

Ozel replied sarcastically and without any reason, "I don't have a problem with you." This made me wonder, if you don't have a problem with me, why did you make me spend all these months writing and getting so tired? I felt like he enjoyed seeing me begging.

Then he replied with another message saying that if he really used me, I wouldn't have realised it.

Just letting you know, I didn't mention any message saying he used me at that time. I think he said it because he knew the relationship was over and wanted to reveal it before it ended. But as soon as he said it, he realized he'd messed up and started trying to cover it up by saying, "I'm just trying to show you that I didn't take advantage of you," even though that excuse is very weak, especially since if he really wanted to He explained to me that he hadn't taken advantage of me, saying, "I wouldn't even realise it." I felt as though he was mocking my understanding of the things around me.

April 3, 2025: After a few hours of talking (Very Important)

The problem worsened, and I wished everyone he loved would die. I left feeling upset. As soon as I walked away, I realised Ozel didn't respect my privacy.

[THIS MESSAGE WAS DELETED]

April 3, 6:10 PM AST.

Ozel kept saying different things, and that bothered me. He was trying to shift the blame for things I had actually done onto him. like "I don't think u were trying to get in contact with me for 8 months"

It's as if he's the one who agreed to solve the problem, despite my numerous messages to him in which I tried to resolve the issue. He's not trying to cooperate with me; he's only trying to get rid of me after taking what he wanted from me, which is my mental health.

He didn't respect the things I used to complain about; he just laughed it off. I left feeling frustrated and upset. I was literally broken. It felt like he got what he wanted and then left me. I was foolish not to notice why he didn't care when my account was banned. I understood why he always reminded me of honesty, even though I didn't know him. I understood why, during our first friendship, he asked me to develop a game for him instead of getting to know each other.

Even when my mental health was affected, he said to me, "Why do we need people?" I understood why he didn't want to hire people in the first place; he treated me like a machine to develop games for him. I understood everything.

Getting over it seemed impossible, but I kept it to myself. I didn't complain to anyone or tell them what Ozel had said that disappointed me. I was thinking that I would leave and never go back to him again after seeing that he didn't want to see my face and wanted to get rid of me.

All his talk was just excuses instead of taking responsibility. I decided to leave and cut him off. It was forever difficult to make a mistake with someone I had worked for for years, doing more than 20 projects for, and from whom I came away only with psychological trauma.

But there's one point that left me stuck in a vicious cycle. I wasn't obsessed with him, but I was deeply saddened by how he exploited me all these years. Some might think it was an obsession, but I don't care. I'm not even proud to be obsessed with someone I was toxic with. But I kept reading my old messages and thinking to myself, "If only I had known what he was thinking to do with me all these years." He actually used my encouragement at the beginning of his YouTube career. He used me to learn Roblox Studio.

What happened next (Not Important)

After those days, I tried to move on, but it was difficult, especially since I was stuck on it. Years of my life were wasted because of one person, and his only intention was to take my energy and effort. Unfortunately, this happened right after I graduated high school, which greatly affected my GPA and forced me to attend a less-than-ideal university. I tried to accept it, thinking that what's done is done and that there's nothing I can do. However, I was worried that Ozel might be talking to other people and might do the same thing to me. Ozel is friends with many developers, some younger than him and some older, but I felt he was exploiting people his own age or younger.

One of the people who helped us with the JoJo game, who was in charge of the models, had the same problem that same year. I talked to him about it when I was devastated, and he told me that Ozel hadn't paid him a single penny, which was true. The same thing happened to me. Ozel actually made me work on JoJo for a few hours and refused to let other people into the project because he thought I was enough for him.

Overall I was thinking of deleting the messages so I could get over it I want to stop reading, because those messages were making me so angry inside I don't want to cause a problems. But I was afraid that Ozel would use them against me later, because even before I contacted him, he was looking for anything he could use against me.

December 23, 2025 : description of the new body, before I left

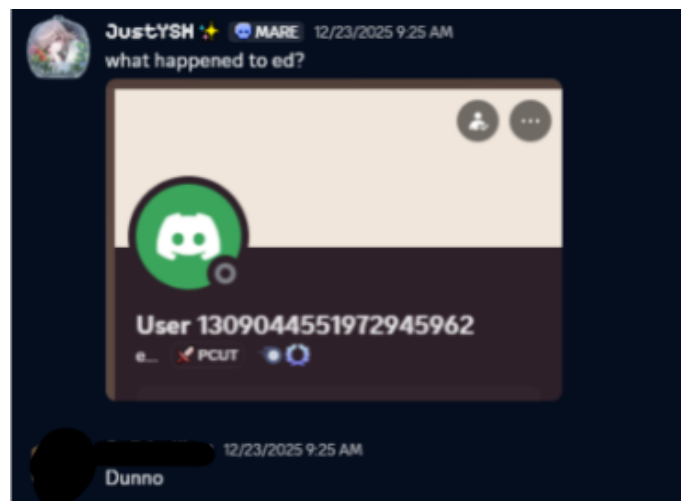

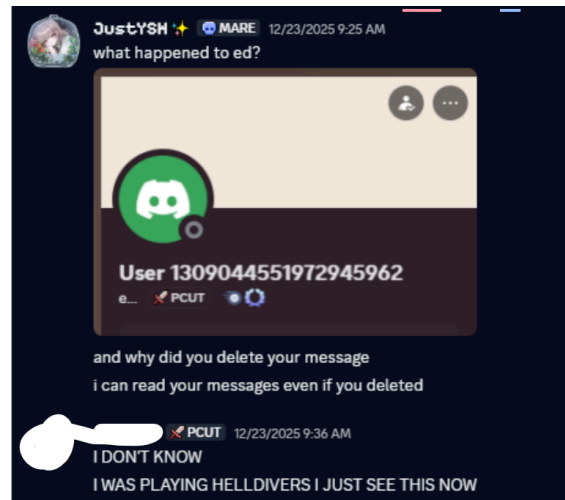

This is from my old project I was working on as developer that doesn't concern Ozel, but rather Ed.

On the 23rd, Ed suddenly disappeared from Discord, which made me worried about him, especially since he had been my friend since 2024. I asked one of the developers if they knew what had happened to Ed, but they all told me they didn't know. Because of that, I assumed it was probably related to school or something personal, so I waited for him to come back. A few hours later, he returned, and I eventually forgot about the situation.

At that time, Ed never told me, nor did he tell the developers' server, that he had stepped away because of a breakup with his girlfriend. In fact, when he came back, he was still using the matching profile picture he had with her. Because of that, I had no reason to believe that he had broken up with his girlfriend at the time, and his behavior did not suggest that anything like that had happened.

Disclaimer

I didn't know anything about what Ed was going through, so I spoke with the developers, and they didn't know anything about what happened. I just assumed he was busy studying, so I kept joking with him.

December 23, 9:25 AM AST. Contact all developers about ed

From my point of view, the old model for ed was already good and did not have any clear issues that required a full redesign. Because of that, I felt that only small improvements were needed, such as adjustments to the hair or minor details, rather than rebuilding the entire model.

I was also surprised by the decision to fully redesign it, and by involving testers in voting for the new version. In my opinion, this type of decision would have been better handled directly by Ed himself or by the owner and developers, since they are more closely involved with the original vision of the project. However, after the new model was released and I reacted to it, I realized that my response was not appropriate, and the way I expressed my opinion was wrong.

I want to make it clear that I did not intend to insult Ed or disrespect his work or anyone involved in the project. My reaction came from frustration with the change, but that does not excuse my wording or behavior. I take full responsibility for what I said, and I sincerely apologize for it. I have also personally apologized to Ed more than once (4 times). I never intended to offend him in any way.

The thighs became more swollen and the breasts became excessively large. My intention wasn't to offend Ed himself, but rather to question why the team had him create a model like that in the first place. When I first saw it, I noticed a line between her legs, which worried me. (Some) members of the team expressed concern that the model's thighs were excessively large, to the point that the animation made it appear as if she was walking in slow motion, and that her breasts were obstructing the view from below.

After 2025

Chapter 3 : Suicide, Reconnections, Betrayal, Blame

February 1, 2026 : Apologize(Important)

I apologized to Ed more than once for my problem and what happened, explaining that I never intended to insult him. My intention was something else entirely, but I didn't realize I'd insulted him. I didn't want to force him to forgive me, so I sent him an apology letter. I also sent an apology message to Ozel, but he ignored it.

January 11, 11:27 AM AST. A few days after he sent me this message, I deleted it because I wasn't paying attention to what I was doing when I sent it.

I didn't care, though, as my condition worsened. I went to therapy, and when I reread my apology letter to Ozel, I realized I was blaming myself, which was incredibly stupid and embarrassing. I deleted the letter, but he had already read it, and I'm sure he did.

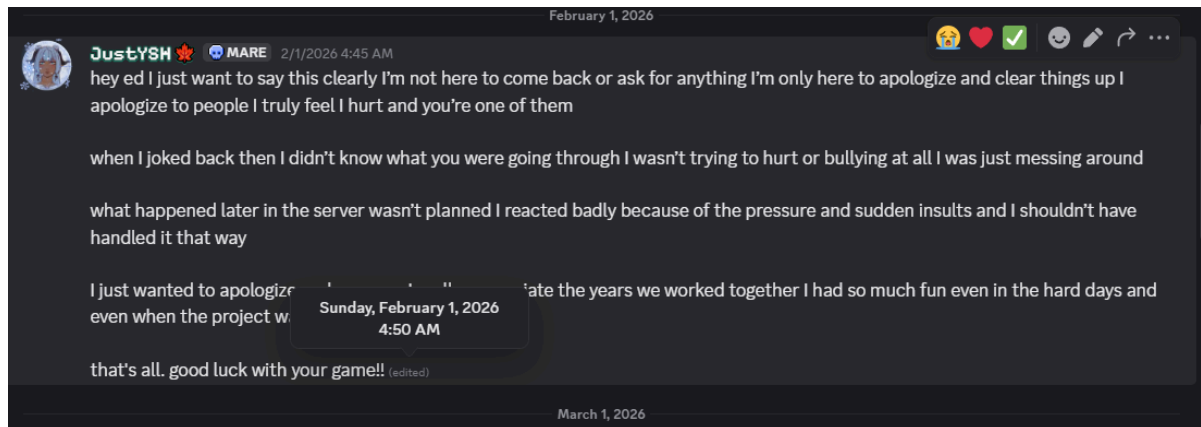

January 11, 11:27 AM AST. My message to Ozel after he convinced me that I was the cause of everything January 12, 8:26 PM AST. Ozel ignored my message and denied that I was trying to contact him.

The reason I acted this way and apologized to everyone was that I thought it was my last month, and then I'd kill myself. The sadness I endured was overwhelming, not just from Ozel, but from many things, and the injustice I suffered made me feel guilty about everything I did. Ozel actually made me believe I never contacted him, even though I'd contacted him multiple times before, but the way he talked makes me think that I'm the one who should be blamed. I tried to apologize to him repeatedly, tried to give him everything he wanted, but after realizing he was just blaming me for things I hadn't done and was the cause of my sadness for this whole year, I'm obviously furious because he didn't even let me sleep.

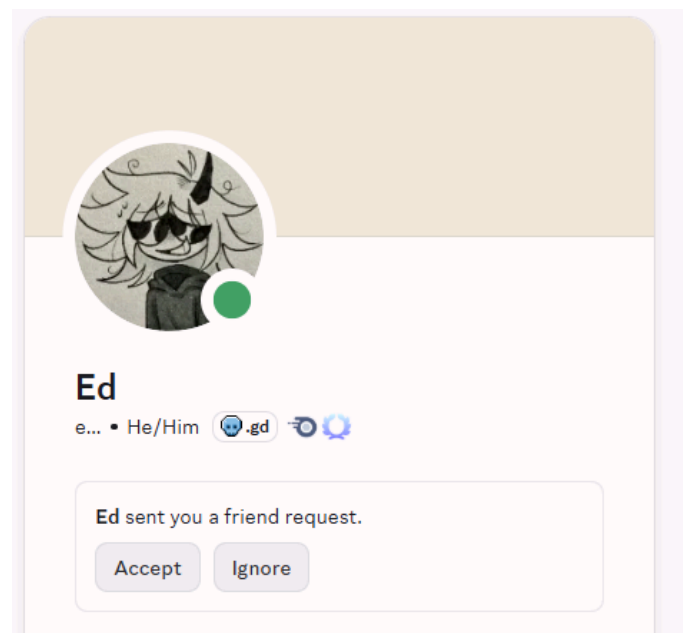

I'm trying to explain the extent of the impact Ozel had on me after he left, because instead of taking responsibility for his mistakes, he started blaming me.

February 1, 2026: I apologize to ed

March 1, 2026 : Reconnect with Ed (Important)

After I had apologized to everyone, about a month later, I got a friend request. It was Ed. I was happy when I saw it, but at the same time, I was still bothered by the things he had said about me before. I accepted it and just sent him "???", and he told me I was one of his closest friends.

March 1, 9:33 AM AST. ED sent a message to me after months.

Honestly, I really did want to reconnect with Ed. Out of everyone I worked with, he was one of the people I genuinely enjoyed working with. I don't regret being his friend; he's someone who actually deserves that.

But I was still shocked by what he had done before, the way he mocked me, in front of the team and others.

So I was going back and forth in my head about whether I should let him back in or not.

March 1, 9:47 AM AST. My refusal to go back to Ed after the harm I suffered

But I couldn't hold back. I ended up going back to Ed, and we started talking again. I asked him how he was doing, how the game was going, all of that. I was genuinely happy about reconnecting with him.

But honestly, there wasn't much else for us to talk about besides his mental health and his game. Every time we talked, it always came back to my old project somehow, and I didn't want to seem like I was still stuck on that whole situation. So I tried to keep things light and just focus on him and how he was doing.

March 13, 2026 : My confession to ED (Important)

- A month passed, but honestly, I still wasn't over it. Yes, I was better than before, yeah, but the whole thing was still on my mind. I couldn't just forget about it and move on. I knew something went wrong. I wasn't just sad for myself; I was sad for K. and for Ed, like nothing happened, like what Ozel said: "We all walked away."

I started telling Ed about my past project and how I was mistreated. I was cursing at him, etc. I was confiding in him about my story, especially since Ed started confiding in me too. While I was confiding in him, Ed was recording videos of me. I trusted him completely, and he came back to cause me problems, even though he had previously been cursing my work. This made people see me as rude, even though I tried to explain that I never meant any harm.

March 13: Ed share the video to his friends

April 12, 2026 : ED is breaking my trust again (Important)

At one point, I showed Ed Ozel doc. During that conversation, Ed told me that he lied at me and that he had been sharing information with his friends and with ozel throughout the situation.

He also told me that he did not hate Ozel and claimed that I was the one who influenced him into believing that Ozel was a bad person.

That statement confused me because, from what I had seen in the past, Ed already had negative feelings toward Ozel long before I became involved. There had been conflicts between them before, and at one point, Ed had even damaged a game connected to Ozel. When that happened, I was the person who ended up taking responsibility for the situation.

Because of that, I found it difficult to understand the claim that I was the reason he formed a negative opinion of Ozel. From my perspective, those issues already existed before I was involved.

Ed 4/12/2026 12:26 AM

Yes?

Okay. YSH I lie to you.

I say that so ozel because

Ed recording a video about me (Important)

I pulled Ed into a private call because we were on a public call in some random server, and I started complaining to Ed about Ozel, how stupid he was, how he was a pervert, and so on. Throughout the call, Ed was recording, pretending to be shocked, as if he don't know about this. When the call ended, Ed went and contacted Ozel and gave him the videos on April 15, 2026. Ozel knew my voice was a red line because I was constantly bullied for my voice and my broken English. So, for someone I trusted to record me talking about someone I dislike and send it to this other person was like starting a war. Especially since he and Ed had shared a document full of lies, solely to destroy my reputation.

Video 1, 44 sec long

Video 2 9:59 min long

Video 3 5:45 min long

April 9, 2026

In one of the videos, in a moment of anger and frustration, I expressed to people my desire to cancel Ozel, but I ultimately decided to not complete the document after this VC call because I was apprehensive about the idea of publishing it. Even though I was speaking seriously on the call, I was still scared, like how people were looking at me and Ozel has a lot of popularity and can deflect attention by grabbing a few things.

April 14, 3:04 AM AST. I told ed that I wasn't share it. My main goal in creating the docwas to vent to myself, but it turned into a exposing document.

When I talked to Ed and confronted him about why he was posting something like that, he tried to play dumb and pretend he didn't know anything, but when I showed him the pictures that Ozel had sent me with videos, he started saying, "Oh, I have school, wait, I have this, I have that. blah blah"

Chapter 4 : Lying, evading responsibility, threats

April 13, 2026 : Start Contacting Ozel, Avoid contact, Threats (Very Important)

The first contact was with Ozel Bani. I was the one who brought up the subject. Ozel didn't want to contact me at all; he chose to publish a document about me instead. His reasons were different; sometimes he said he didn't want to contact me because he was afraid I'd take pictures, and other times he said it was because he saw deleted messages, even though he had seen them before they were deleted.

but anyways I reached out to Ozel while and I wanted to find a resolution and end this war. Ozel responded by saying that he believed *both of us* had made mistakes. But he was so late he only said this two years later, after spending all that time blaming me, mocking me, and even ignoring the apology I sent him in 2026.

During the conversation, he also made what I saw as a veiled threat. He implied that he still had screenshots or evidence he had not released yet and suggested that they could potentially destroy my career. At the same time, he claimed that he did not want to damage my reputation even though he had already published a document accusing me of things I never actually did, despite clear evidence proving I did not do them and, in several cases, had done the exact opposite.

What disturbed me the most was the way he delivered these messages. He would say things like he was reading the Quran, present himself as calm and well-intentioned, and then immediately follow that with subtle threats. It felt psychologically manipulative he would reassure me one moment, then make an implied threat the next, creating a constant cycle of comfort followed by intimidation.

1 - the word you keep mentioning about, "if I was really using you, you wouldn't even realise it" was a word I said to make you realize I'd never do such a thing specifically we known each other for years, why would you think I'd do such a thing

2 - I clearly remember we talked about this and decided that you can keep the % I was going to get in ur fpe game that I was barely contributing to, yet here we are talking the same things again

3 - some people can understand it wrong when someone tries to be harsh about their replies, I need you to understand that I'm trying to understand ur issue here

4 - deleting the messages, adding my texts in ur document, and adding the edited texts I changed to make the texts I sent you before more understandable yet still counting them as "evidence" is a next level disrespect specially if you're trying to accuse me of stuff here while you're the one started to make this document in the first place

5 - I respect [redacted] privacy otherwise there would be more mentioning about him, but he's not involved in this as from what I've seen so far, you never bothered to dm me even tho we already solved our issue and yet you're still here telling me the same stuff without giving me the answer I need. You're asking me to take the document down but I can only do that when everything is cleared out, otherwise there's not much I can do

6 - your rep is not damaged, but the clips and screenshots I'm looking at from the other people sent me in discord would really hurt your rep, I just hope that nobody sees this. I already reached out to you yet the responses you made were barely something or it was literally nothing, atleast from what I've seen so far

7 - yeah I didn't understood what it actually meant after I grew up, which I already apologized but you're still bragging about it. and you don't see me making those disgusting jokes anymore, there's years of gap between back then and current

8 - you never bothered to talk to me even tho I would be interested to fix the stuff between you and I again for the last time

9 - it still doesn't matter, you're a part of the development team on the game you're working on with the people that needed your support

January 11, 11:27 AM AST. My message to Ozel after he convinced me that I was the cause of everything

Once I realized that what he was saying could be interpreted as a threat, even though it was phrased indirectly enough that I did not notice it at first, I confronted him. I asked, "Do you realize that this could be interpreted as a threat or even extortion?"

Instead of answering my question directly, he responded by saying lawyer lawyer lawyer lawyer and lawyer. That response made no sense to me. I was talking to him personally in a normal conversation, not pursuing any legal action. I was asking him a simple question, so I did not understand why he suddenly brought in someone I had never met, who did not know me, and whose role in the situation was completely unclear.

From my perspective, it felt like he was refusing to resolve the matter directly, even though Ozel himself had already agreed that the situation should be put behind us. If he was willing to move on, then why was someone else suddenly speaking on his behalf? It left me wondering who was actually making the decisions.

I hate to drag this out any longer but wait I have question? why are you bringing up the videos in this way? Because you know it's considered blackmail/threatening "but the clips and screenshots I'm looking at from the other people sent me in discord would really hurt your rep" I don't want to have any misunderstood

No no I don't mean to say it that way, my lawyer knows abt these stuff more I'm just asking for his advice

January 11, 11:27 AM AST. My message to Ozel after he convinced me that I was the cause of everything

Throughout my attempts to resolve the issue with him, he would sometimes take a long time to respond, which annoyed me and made me realize he was avoiding me. This confirmed my suspicion that his statement in the document, where he said he wanted to contact me, was merely a public relations exercise to appear as a sensible person trying to fix problems, when in reality he didn't truly want to and enjoyed causing me trouble.

I even told him that if no real solution was found, I'd take legal action because I was fed up. And then, after my message, he said, "I have a meeting, I'll get back to you in a few hours." He actually disappeared for a whole day, just playing Roblox. Is this the same person who said, "ozel doc: I wanted to contact him, but I was shocked! about the deleted messages"? I felt like he was just trying to appear perfect, nothing more. He was even online when I was trying to talk to him, but he didn't really want to solve the problem. He didn't want to be exposed as someone who was everything to me. It was embarrassing for him to appear hypocritical and deceitful in front of me, so I think that's why he kept avoiding me.

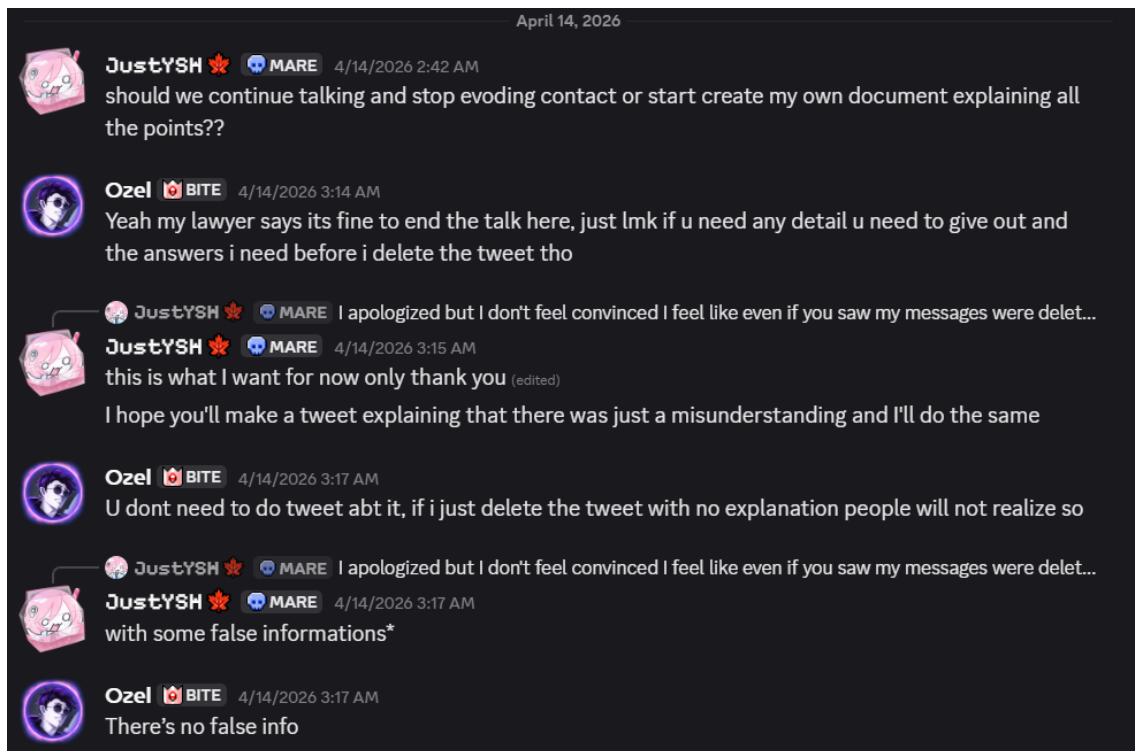

January 11, 11:27 AM AST. He told me he was in a meeting and busy, but at the same time he opened Roblox and started playing. And he even disappeared for a whole day

April 15, 2026 : Blocking, Escaping Responsibility (Very Important)

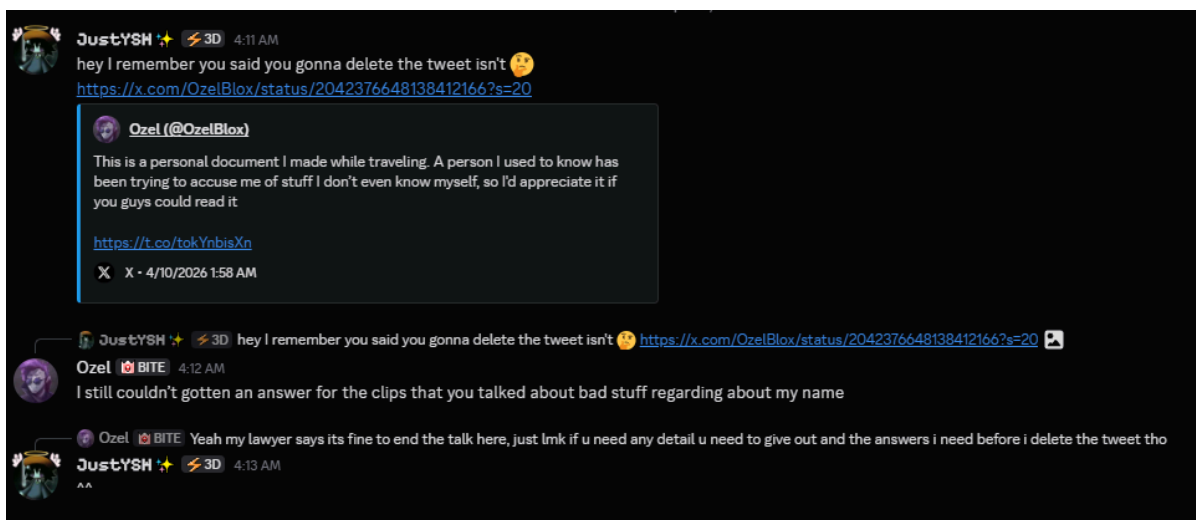

When our problem was almost resolved, I told him to make a tweet explaining that everything was a misunderstanding, etc. Ozel refused and said that I didn't need to make a doc explaining my story, so I would delete the doc without anyone noticing.

The reason I asked for more clarification was that I was the one who suffered from the issue. Why didn't you want anyone to notice or explain? I lost some friends and Discord servers where I was active daily. The fact that you just wanted to close the issue while I was the one who suffered was something that surprised me, but I kept quiet and agreed.

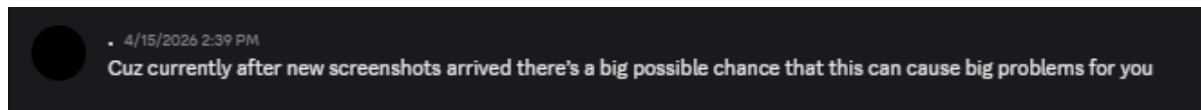

April 14, 3:15-3:17 AM AST. He didn't delete the document; he made me believe he would, but he wanted to make it longer and cause me even more harm, to the point where my credibility wouldn't be trusted.

At that time, I explained to Ozel that he had written a doc about me containing many false claims. A whole day passed, and Ozel hadn't deleted the doc. When I went back and talked to him, he told me briefly, "I still couldn't get an answer for the clips that you talked about, the bad stuff regarding my name." He had literally said yesterday that he would delete the doc, but suddenly decided to change his mind.

April 15, 4:11 AM AST. The next day I messaged him asking if he still hadn't deleted it. He replied that he hadn't deleted it because he was receiving serious rumors about me that had nothing to do with our main problem. His tone was like he was trying to scare me, implying that he could ruin my reputation with a single tweet, just like he did the first time.

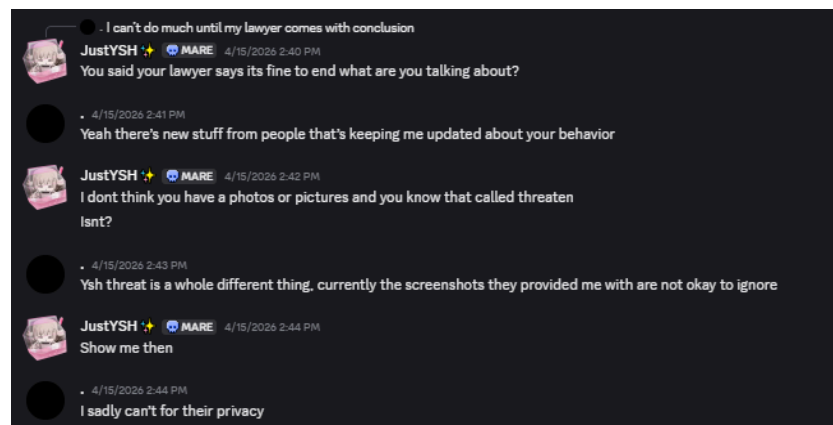

When I told him that you told me you were going to delete the doc. He said that he contact People who hate me were sending him pictures of me, making me look like a bad person. and "big possible chance that this can cause big problems for you."

April 15, 11:27 AM AST. Ozel threatened me, saying he had things about me that would ruin me. It was like blackmail, but it wasn't clear exactly what he wanted from me.

I was surprised because the problem was about Ozel and me. Why would he go and involve people who hate me and have nothing to do with our problems? I felt like he just wanted to drag things out and take advantage of every opportunity to prevent the doc from being deleted.

April 15th, 2026, 2:40 PM: Ozel using the most disgusting excuse "I sadly can't for their privacy." Throughout the conversation, he kept saying that the photos were impactful, that they were powerful, and that they would ruin my career. I felt it was just an attempt to scare me, nothing more tbh. The funny thing is that he's telling me that a threat is something completely different, even though a threat is someone who threatens with pictures or says, "The videos and pictures I have will really affect your reputation."

April 15, 11:27 AM AST. I told him to show me pictures, but suddenly it became a reason to keep their privacy private because last time I revealed that he was the one who recorded them, so he didn't want to reveal them, but I already knew them because he exposed him again which was ed and some people who treated me so bad

Despite turning over a new leaf in our friendship with Ed, I discovered that he was trying to appear innocent in front of Ozel, claiming I had hurt him even though we had reconciled. When I spoke to Modler about this, he told me I couldn't fix the past, even though he was the one who approached me and sent me the friend request, not me

When I was talking to Ozel about his doc and asking why some of the information in it was simply incorrect, he did not directly address the points I was raising. Instead, he shifted the conversation to an entirely different topic that had nothing to do with what I was asking.

He brought up the dispute between Papercut and me and asked, "Did you use ..... work?"

YSH: "Yes, because I didn't get paid so yea."

Ozel: "The developers say that you removed your work after a disagreement. Is that correct?"

YSH: "are you talking about this??" (wondering why he is talking about different things)

*YSH showing Ozel posted pictures of the people who told them they were hurt and how they were treating YSH in a terrible way.*

Ozel: "Unfortunately, that has nothing to do with me."

YSH: "If it has nothing to do with you, then why did you bring up developers that I already had issues with in the first place?"

Ozel: "You were the one who opened it, and you were the one who closed it."

That question bothered me because those discussions were private and involved sensitive disagreements, especially regarding payment disputes. It was not information that many people knew about, and it was not the first time information like this had been shared outside of the people involved.

What stood out to me was the contradiction. When I questioned information in his doc, he redirected the discussion toward unrelated disputes involving me. But when evidence regarding The source showed him the people he had brought it from and how badly they had treated me, was presented, he dismissed it as something that did not concern him. To me, it felt like certain topics were considered relevant when they could be used against me, but irrelevant when they reflected negatively on him.

I honestly don't care how long this takes since this involves defamation and my name and work are still in the game I guess this is part of being an "Ideal Owner" right?

as long as my name and work remain associated with a project full of defamation hatred false promises, and hostility I no longer want to be associated with it if I had known this would turn out this way I would never have agreed to kick kannon involved

I am giving you this week only to remove everything this needs to be done immediately

April 15, 3:50 PM AST. Ozel brought up another issue over something completely unrelated to our main issue, and when I showed him pictures and the treatment I received from these people he's defending, he replied that it didn't concern him, even though he blocked me for this reason. Which sounds like avoiding our main issue

I was trying to keep things calm and find a way for us to talk things out, but Ozel decided to block me. Before blocking me, he told me that anything that would happen in the future would have serious consequences and wished me good luck. Then he blocked me.

April 15, 4:00 PM AST. Ozel blocked me over something completely unrelated to our main issue it seemed like he was just trying to avoid it since he kept saying "I'm in a meeting rn" while he was playing a random Roblox game

April 15, 4:01-4:02 PM AST. II DM one of my friends, and it turned out Ozel had blocked him too.

I was not trying to become friends with Ozel again, and I never asked for that. I was only trying to stop the situation from getting worse.

The reason this argument started was that Ozel said he was going to delete the doc, but he never did. Instead, he linked it to my old friends situation, which I found strange because, from my understanding, the doc was an issue between him and me. What frustrated me was how the story kept changing. One moment, he would say one thing, then later say something completely different. At one point, he accused me of not trying to contact him and said I was lying, even though I had messages and evidence for everything I was saying.

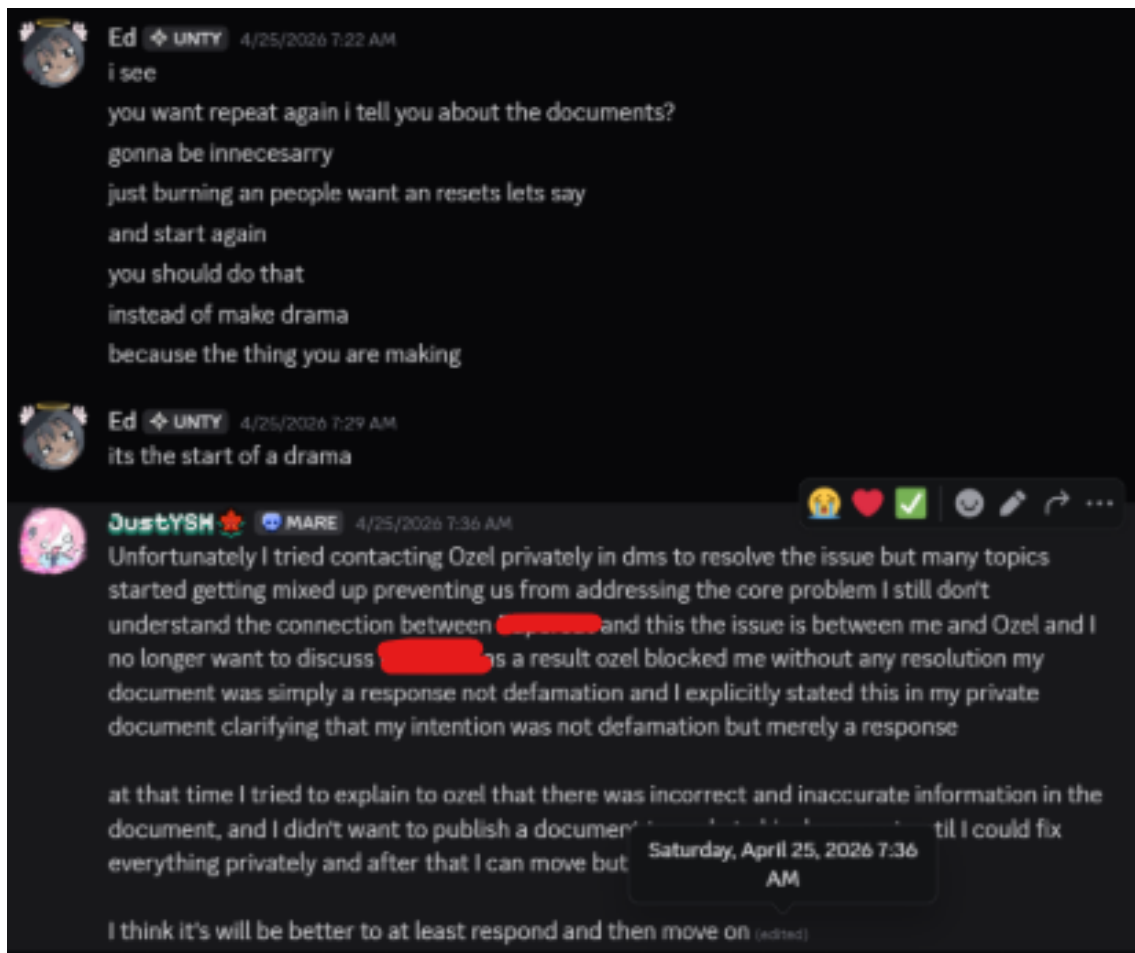

Another thing that bothered me was how often lawyers were mentioned in the conversation. It kept coming up that the lawyer understands the situation, or that the lawyer is upset, or that the lawyer is involved in some way. After hearing it multiple times, it started to feel less like a normal conversation and more like pressure. By the end of the discussion, Ozel said that I kept asking him questions and was not giving him enough time to respond. I did not agree with that because the conversation already had long messages from both sides, and I was responding to everything point by point instead of ignoring parts of it.

No matter what, his way of speaking was threatening. No one brings up the pictures and videos except to scare or pressure you. When I told Ozel this, he said that I was trying to appear angelic and that this would affect his reputation if I said he threatened me. And actually, I can't say that he didn't threaten me; he actually threatened me by saying that he would get some pictures of me in a vague way and start telling me that my reputation would be affected and that these things would destroy me. and this is called threatening me because he has a bigger audience and a higher position, so no one would believe me if I came out and spoke.

April 25, 2026 : Ed Adds Me to a Group to Insult Me, End Connections (Very Important)

When I told Ed I was going to respond to Ozel, I knew he'd go talk to him. So I told him on the 25th, the day I was going to post my story. Ed started getting nervous and saying I was prolonging the drama, even though he was involved in Ozel's drama and he was the one who allowed Ozel to make a document about me full of lies.

Ed started changing his profile picture more frequently than usual and then reverting to his old one. When I posted the document, Ed read it and started insulting me repeatedly. He was defending Ozel more than himself, to the point that he created a group and added me to someone I didn't want to be in. Without my consent, he dragged me into the group and started insulting me there with his friend. They said 19 different insults at me. They were constantly defending Ozel. Ed only acts like this when he sees someone with fame and money.

April 25, 11:27 AM AST.

After I said I won't go into "The old project I used to work on" (I wasn't referring to Ed and Ozel, but to people from the past we had with each other). (Problem) and we agreed that no one would talk about the other. I left the group and found that someone had removed me from the friend list, as if he had taken what he wanted.

Conclusion

Personal Responsibility

i take full personal responsibility for my actions and the mistakes i made. there were moments when i was under intense pressure and completely lost my temper, which led me to react impulsively and insult others' stuff. having ADHD means i deal with impulsivity, especially in tight and awkward situations, but i am not using that as an excuse or looking for sympathy.

i completely own up to how i handled things during those heated moments. i am not trying to hide my mistakes or justify them, i am just stating the facts of what happened and owning my part in it.

Privacy, And Distraction

i always kept my real life completely away from discord and i even put that in my bio. but back in 2025 ozel wouldn't stop questioning me, constantly trying to pry into my personal business to see what was going on. it literally wasn't his business at all, so i just gave him different stories to back him off.

Honestly, it just felt like he was used my anxiety to make me begging him even more. so if ozel or his friends end up leaking any screenshots where i said something else, just remember i keep my real life separate from social media. i had to hide my actual updates back then, and they're only bringing this up now to distract everyone from the main issue and the actual victims.

Therefore, a person must understand the privacy of others and not interfere in it. Lying about the matter wasn't easy for me, so I wanted to tell Ozel this, but I felt it might be interpreted as me exploiting my life problems and bringing them into my problems with someone I only really know as ("Ozel") asking him for sympathy. I wanted to tell him the truth when things calmed down, but no

I've never told my problems to Ozel but only once in my life, when I comforted him about a family problem he was facing. If I were actually lying, I wouldn't have said this part and I would have admitted my mistake of lying to Ozel when he was questioning me, pressuring me, blaming me for something I had no control over.

To my old best friend

It's unfortunate how our friendship ended after working on so many games together. My mistake was constantly counting on you for a game, and it caused you a breakdown.

Sadly, our friendship ended some time ago, but I haven't forgotten you. You were one of the best people I've ever made friends with, even though I came out of this mess having lost everything.

I just wanted to apologize for causing you mental health problems back then by making you work with me on Ozel games. It would have been better if I had left Ozel a long time ago.

Why I Wrote This, Why Now?

I've known Ozel for six years and I know him well. I know how he acts and how he thinks, and I haven't seen him change at all. The reason I didn't speak up then, and why I chose to speak up now, is because throughout my treatment and medication, I was afraid no one would believe me if I spoke. I knew Ozel was a master of deception and capable of getting out of any predicament. He might even lie to his followers, claiming I was obsessed with him and wanted to destroy him. I was just trying to speak up, but I decided to stay silent and move on with my life after hearing what happened to my other friends. Some of them were in a worse situation than me, and they had known Ozel for years. That's when I realized I wasn't alone.

Even in 2026, there were still people affected by Özil's actions, which prompted me to speak out. I used to talk to Ozel a lot before he became famous, so I contacted Ed. I used to criticize Ozel harshly, and although Ed had messages criticizing him for other reasons, he suddenly started defending him after Ozel became famous. It seems as though he sided with a manipulative and exploitative individual solely for fame, prompting Ozel and his team to fabricate a scenario about me to create a document portraying me as a bad person. This resulted in my being banned from the servers. Ozel and Ed only provided weak and insufficient proof.

In short, Ozel is presenting a different picture than what's actually happening and is trying to cover up what happened, not just with me, but with other people as well, even some. And it's even possible that he fabricated and lied about this story. Example

After he was exposed, he blocked me everywhere and left me with no space to speak

When the situation ended, he didn't really acknowledge anything. A few days later, you acted like everything was normal and asked me if I wanted to help you with another game, as if nothing had happened. I realize my perception of you was shaped by denial. There were moments when I thought I might be used or ignored, but I kept dismissing those thoughts because I wanted to believe in the friendship.

In 2023, when I took a break, I noticed how easily he disappeared from contact. It felt like I didn't matter to him anymore. I know he saw my messages when I was blaming myself in his DMs before I deleted them after realising. And later, when we spoke, he brought parts of the deleted message in a way that made me feel like he had already seen the message but chose not to respond. It was also because of the messages I saw and the way I started to understand my own situation differently. Over time, I realized how much I had been blaming myself for things I didn't fully understand.

At some point, I realized I couldn't keep returning to the same dynamic and expecting a different outcome. I needed to step back and regain my sense of self. So Ozel, I have to ask: would a lawyer genuinely approve of sending messages that contain threats or pressure instead of trying to resolve a situation peacefully? If he were the client, wouldn't the decision to continue or drop the matter ultimately be his? That is why I still find it difficult to understand something he told me. If he were already willing to resolve the situation, why did he tell me, "Because currently this became a problem and my lawyer isn't very happy about this"? If he were the one making the decisions, why was I suddenly being told to justify myself to someone else?

I also question why his lawyer would have any interest in matters that had nothing to do with him directly. For example, the situation involving the people in the issue was not something he was personally involved in. It was not his dispute. It was not his conflict. So why was it being presented to me as if it had become part of a legal matter connected to him? I'm not accusing him of lying, but these are questions I never received a clear answer to, and they remain some of the things that continue to confuse me when I look back on that period.

I suspect him actually used the situation by kicking me from groups we were both in (JOJO, FPE, BOMB GAME, etc), so I wouldn't have access to them, and then he could claim I prevented him from meeting the modeller. I'm sure this document was leaked to him again because of some people who chose fame over trust, but I don't care anymore.

To My (Real) Friends

I also want to acknowledge the people who were actually there for me.

Unfortunately, I cannot mention their names here, but they already know who they are. They listened without turning my words against me. When I made mistakes, they did not collect them for later use. When I disappeared for a while and came back, they did not treat me like a suspect or demand that I justify every decision I had made. They stayed because they genuinely wanted to, not because they wanted access to someone else, a project, or an opportunity.

Some of them noticed the changes in me at the beginning of 2026. There were times when I was angrier than usual. They could have used those moments against me. They could have recorded them, shared them, or treated them as evidence of something. Instead, they chose to listen. They chose to understand.

I think that is one of the biggest differences between a real friend and a fake one. A real friend remembers that you are a person. They see your flaws, your bad days, and your mistakes, and they still choose to treat you with basic kindness and understanding. A fake friend only values you for what you can provide. The moment you stop being useful, the relationship changes. That lesson took me a long time to learn, but it is one I will never forget.

To those people who stood by me when they had no reason to, thank you. I appreciate you more than I can properly put into words.

Final Closure

I know the story is very difficult and full of difficult experiences that changed my view of people forever, from the experience of someone who lived in a toxic environment from a young age. I didn't know what was happening around me; my English was very broken. I did not choose to spend years blaming myself. Before therapy, that was how I dealt with problems. Whenever something went wrong, I would look for ways to make it my fault. I thought taking responsibility for everything would somehow fix the situation. but, I understand that much of what I was doing was driven by guilt rather than reality.

The truth is that more than one person was affected by what happened, and I was one of them. There are people whose stories I have deliberately left out of this document, even though they were deeply affected by many of the same events. Every person involved could easily gather a handful of screenshots and tell their side of the story. The difference is that most people begin with words before they begin with evidence.

When I responded to Ozel's document, I was willing to acknowledge that not everything was black and white. I even told him that I was willing to give him credit where I believed it was deserved. What stood out to me, however, was how much of the response focused on his own feelings rather than the impact his actions had on the people around him. I never ignored his feelings or his mental health. I supported him when I considered him a friend. But support does not erase accountability.

In my view, protecting a reputation is not the same thing as telling the truth. When someone becomes more focused on preserving their image than reflecting on their actions, the conversation stops being about what happened and starts becoming about damage control.

After 11 years of comms and working on projects for other people, I made the decision to close comms and stop taking that kind of work permanently. For a long time, I gave more of myself than I should have. I opened my heart too much to people, I gave many chances, I said what I was afraid to say, and it was leaked by someone I trusted.

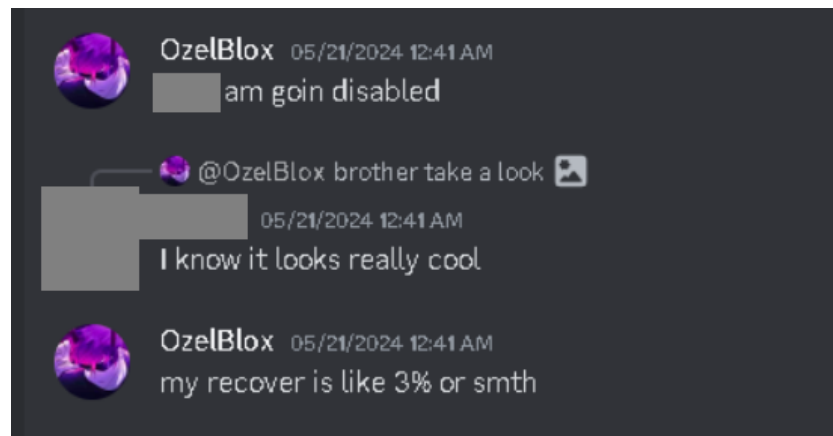

I gave my time and effort to people who didn't deserve it but I treated this experience as a lesson, one that taught me the importance of boundaries and the importance of valuing my own time and effort.

They expected me to stay quiet about what happened, but that's not what happened, because I saw what happened; I was the most heard what happened, I was the most saw how my friends were affected. The one who started this problem is Ed. I am ready for any lawsuit that may be filed against me in the future or maybe I file one to ed and ozel.

Lastly, if Ozel, Ed, or any of their associates attempt to rewrite history regarding the projects I spent years building projects where I was marginalized and mistreated simply to portray themselves as victims, as they did in their first document, this will be my final response on the matter. The fact that I've been keeping quiet about these people for months, and despite them contacting Ozel, portraying themselves as victims, I have spent the last 4 months meticulously documenting the facts. I will not waste any more time writing lengthy rebuttals. If any further false or misleading claims are made, I will address them directly and publicly on my main Twitter account with the evidence already documented. Just let you know,

I only discovered I had ADHD a few weeks ago. So, it's not Ozel's fault because she was joking about something sensitive for me. But he knew I was being bullied because of my English. This document was written using a translator, so if any meaning changed without my noticing, I apologize. I tried to read it several times and consulted with my friends to make sure everything was correct.

Ozel never told me he'd be temporarily paralyzed, which caused me stress and sadness for him, even after we ended our friendship. He told me he had a 3% chance of recovery, which worried me, especially since he's one of my oldest friends, and I'd definitely be furious if I found out he knew it was temporary.

[One of the groups that Ozel kicked me from]

Ozel is lying to his fans, and what happens behind the scenes is even worse. I spoke out; I don't care about the consequences. Let's end this doc. - JustYSH / Eve
